

RUTH ELDER PLANE SIGHTED AT SEA

PLANE STARTS FROM GERMANY FOR NEW YORK

Five Trans-Ocean Flights On—Mrs. Grayson Delayed

By I. N. S.

Five trans-Atlantic flights are actually under way today or are in course of preparation.

Miss Ruth Elder and Pilot George W. Haldeman are somewhere over the Atlantic today in the plane "American Girl," enroute from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., where they hoped off yesterday at 5:04 p. m. for Paris, Diendonne Costes and Joseph Le Brix, French airmen, are at St. Louis, Senegal, Africa, on a trans-Atlantic flight La Bourget, near Paris, to Buenos Ayres, via Pernambuco, Brazil.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—A Fieseler-Henkel "water monoplane," the D-1220, piloted by Horst Moerz, hopped off at Warnemunde at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon on a flight which may terminate at New York if conditions are propitious.

Merz was accompanied by a mechanic, Herr Rhode, and a radio operator, Herr Boek. He said he intended to land at Amsterdam. If weather conditions are favorable for a trans-Atlantic flight, he will proceed from Amsterdam to Lisbon and the Azores, thence to New Foundland and New York. If weather conditions are unfavorable Merz will give up his trans-Atlantic plans, making a tour over Europe.

The plane is powered with a single 800-horse power Packard motor.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 12.—Indications early today were that the hop-off of Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane "The Dawn," in which she intends to fly to Copenhagen, Denmark, would not take place before this afternoon.

Although all was in readiness for the take-off and the plane was fully loaded with fuel and provisions, it was pointed out that weather conditions were not favorable for an early hop.

Mrs. Grayson retired at 12:30 a. m., and did not express any intention of setting out in the wake of Ruth Elder across the Atlantic before noon.

Mechanics were tuning up "The Dawn's" engines and filling the tanks with fuel when word that "The American Girl" had set out into the setting sun with her nose pointed to Paris. Immediately they began to speed up their work.

Mrs. Grayson did not appear to be surprised at the news that Miss Elder had taken to the air first. She said her goal and purpose were different from that of Miss Elder's and that she did not wish to enter any trans-Atlantic race.

She wished Miss Elder all the luck in the world.

MRS. MARY EMERY CALLED BY DEATH

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 12.—Funeral arrangements are being made here today for Mrs. Mary M. Emery, philanthropist and one of Ohio's richest women, who died at her home Tuesday night after an illness of several months.

Among Mrs. Emery's philanthropies are: The Ohio Mechanics Institute for which she has contributed $500,000; University of Cincinnati, $250,000 for the establishment of a chair of pediatrics; Kenyon College at Gambier, Ohio, $50,000, and property valued at $75,000 for the Cincinnati Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Emery was also interested in a "City of Contentment," near here, named Marletmont, in memory of Mrs. Emery's residence at Newport, R. I. It had been planned to erect an ideal city with special attention paid to the modern needs of children and community life.

SCHOOL CLOSED

CIRCLEVILLE, O., October 12.—Dr. George W. Haffner, county health physician, today closed the Washington Township school and placed a quarantine on the Pickaway County Children's Home following the discovery of a case of infantile paralysis here. Lloyd Temple, 7, pupil of the school and inmate of the home, is the victim. This is the fourth case of infantile paralysis in Pickaway County.

TEMPLARS PARADE

AKRON, O., Oct. 12.—More than 10,000 Ohio Knights Templars, all in full regalia, were to take part in the parade here this afternoon which will be the feature event of the annual state convocation.

The convocation will come to a close tomorrow after business sessions and talks by officials of the Ohio Commandery.

SALE DATES RESERVED.

FIRE RUINS SUMMER RESORT

FIVE KILLED WHEN STORM HITS VILLAGE

BLYTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 12.—Five dead and eighteen injured was the toll of life taken early today by a severe storm which whipped through the village of Dell, eight miles from here.

Early reports of ten to thirty dead were based on estimates by Cobb Brothers, undertakers, who were busy most of the night bringing the dead and injured over rain-soaked roads to the local hospital. Very little damage was done in Blytheville.

The known dead are: Justice of the Peace J. P. Williams and wife. E. M. Hardin and wife. An unidentified boy, aged about 12, who died in the hospital.

ENGINEERS PLAN TO CONSIDER MEANS OF FLOOD PREVENTION

Begin Convention In Columbus—Speeches On Program

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—The searchlight of the best technical knowledge in America was to be turned on the century-old problem of Mississippi river floods here today, as the American Society of Civil Engineers opened its fall convention.

The majority of the convention's four-day session was devoted to a study of the flood control question, with particular attention to the Mississippi. The first official survey of the 1927 flood—the most disastrous in the history of the father of waters—were to be made available to the delegates at the outset, when Maj. Gen. Edwin Jadwin, chief of army engineers, in whose care the flood problem has been entrusted for years, opened up technical discussions with a complete resume of the Mississippi problem. Gen. Jadwin's address was scheduled for 2:30 p. m. The closest secrecy was maintained by all speakers, particularly those attached to the army engineering staff and the other official bodies who deal with the Mississippi flood question, no intimation of the contents of their addresses being divulged in advance of delivery.

Gen. Jadwin was to be followed at this afternoon's session by Col. C. Mod. Townsend, U. S. A., retired, of New Orleans at the river's mouth. Lt. Col. George R. Spalding, also of the army engineers, was to follow with an illustrated treatise on the 1927 flood of the Mississippi, and N. C. Grover, chief engineer, U. S. Geological Survey, will complete the picture of conditions as they now exist by discussing the run-off characteristics of the Mississippi drainage system.

At the annual banquet tonight, Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, after flying here from Dayton, where he is attending the dedication of Wright Flying Field, today was also scheduled to contribute the official government's viewpoint on the flood control problem.

Remedial measures and plans for combating the recurring disasters in the delta basin, will be taken up at tomorrow's session, with the leading official and lay experts presenting and contrasting the various theories for diverting the huge volume of flood water, and conveying it safely to the Gulf without the attendant enormous damage to property which marked this year's high water period.

C. W. Kutz, Cincinnati, of the Mississippi River Commission; E. F. McCarthy of the Federal Forestry Bureau; Col. William Kelly, Buffalo; John F. Coleman, New Orleans; Col. William F. Wooten, New Orleans; Maj. S. C. Goffrey, Memphis; and Marcel Garsaud, of the Board of Port Commissioners, New Orleans, were scheduled for the Thursday program.

ATTACK STUDENT

BEREA, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Anthony Pamer, 23, of Akron, a student at Baldwin-Wallace College here, was in a hospital today with knife wounds in his side, which are not believed serious.

Pamer told police that he was attacked by a band of youths last night while walking with Miss Mary Aurbach, 19, of Detroit, also a student, on the college campus. Miss Aurbach screamed and Pamer's assailants fled. He believes that they mistook him for another student against whom they bore a grudge.

SOMEWHERE OVER ATLANTIC

Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman are somewhere over the Atlantic in their plane "American Girl."

TAX DISTRICTS FAIL TO AGREE ON 1928 BUDGET REQUEST CUTS

County Budget Commission faces the thankless task of slicing approximately $65,900 off the aggregate 1928 budget requests of City Commission, City Board of Education and County Commissioners, to bring the total appropriations within the legal fifteen-mill limitation.

No agreement was reached regarding an equitable distribution of the reduction at a joint conference of the budget commission with the city and county commissioners and city school board, that lasted two and one-half hours Tuesday.

Budget commission faces the necessity of making a reduction of 2.80 mills in the total budget requests, which aggregate 17.80 mills for next year and this was the purpose of the meeting.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' BODY IS REVIVED; BINDER PRESIDENT

Organization Holds Enthusiastic Meeting—Committee Appointed To Consider New Industries For City

A committee appointed by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association at an enthusiastic meeting Tuesday night, began work Wednesday investigating several new industries which may locate here.

One of these industrial concerns was to be approached Wednesday by the committee with the belief that the natural facilities of Xenia would serve to persuade the company to establish a going industrial concern here. Possibility of other manufacturing plants locating here will also be investigated by the committee before it reports back to the association at the next meeting, Tuesday, October 25 at 7:30 o'clock.

Henry L. Binder, vice-president, who called the meeting Tuesday night after J. Thorb Charters, president, offered his resignation, was elected president to succeed Mr. Charters when the latter's resignation was accepted. Mr. Binder called the meeting in an effort either to revive the organization, dormant practically since it was formed several months ago, or to dissolve the association and wind up its business.

With a representation of about half of the original membership present, those attending the meeting were so enthusiastic over plans outlined by President Binder that members agreed the organization can be made to function along its original lines. They expressed themselves as believing that an active commercial organization will fill a long-felt want here.

The meeting was held in a room at 28 W. Main St., over the Yowler fish market, in a building owned by President Binder and he donated its continued use to the association. The association took steps to furnish the room for the occupancy of the organization and all future meetings will be held there.

While no action was taken to seek new members for the association, it was announced that the organization invited retail merchants to join by getting in touch with Mr. Binder or with Paul G. Feggs, treasurer.

FLAMES CAUSE LOSS OF THREE MILLIONS AT OCEAN CITY, N. J.

Firemen From Twenty Cities Fight Blaze—Hotels Destroyed

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—A $3,000,000 fire which swept the boardwalk of this resort last night, destroying two hotels, forty stores and other buildings, was brought under control early today. The fire was the most disastrous blaze in the city's history. Police believe it was started when a lighted match or cigarette was carelessly thrown into a pile of rubbish alongside the boardwalk.

Firemen from twenty surrounding municipalities—some of them coming as far as Atlantic City and Cape May—succeeded in checking the flames after a hard battle. A square and a half of the boardwalk frontage was burned. For a distance of three blocks back of the boardwalk houses were either destroyed or damaged by the flames, which for a time threatened to wipe out the entire residential section of the city.

The firemen did great work in checking the flames at the Strand Hotel, where there were about two hundred guests. This is a six story frame structure. The guests fled from the buildings, many of them in night attire. In the meantime the flames had destroyed thirty-eight small stores on the boardwalk, two bath houses, the Normandie Hotel, the Colonial Theater, the Traymore Hotel, and several private residences. Thirty automobiles were destroyed. The Traymore and Normandie Hotels had been closed for the season.

Four firemen were overcome. Police and firemen were aided by 200 Boy Scouts.

SPRINGFIELD WILL ENTERTAIN FLYERS

Honoring William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, world flight aviators, the former a native of Greene County, a public reception will be held at the Springfield Masonic Temple following the banquet at which the Chamber of Commerce of Springfield will be host to the noted aviators Thursday, it is announced.

Citizens of Springfield will have an opportunity to greet the famous aviators at the reception. Brock and Schlee will arrive in Springfield at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Both will deliver talks at the banquet. As guests of the city, the two flyers will fly over Springfield Thursday afternoon as a symbolic demonstration of the near completion of their round-the-world flight.

Following the public reception, they will leave Friday morning for New York City in the Pride of Detroit their world flight plane. The plane will be guarded closely while in Springfield.

BATHER ELECTROCUTED

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—Mrs. G. H. Lybarger, 29, was dead today after being electrocuted while bathing yesterday. A short circuit in water heating device which she was using in the bath tub caused the fatality. A maid heard Mrs. Lybarger's calls for help but the bathroom door was locked and the victim was dead before an entrance could be effected.

SUNDAY IS HEARD

AKRON, O., Oct. 12.—Billy Sunday, famous evangelist, told an audience in the armory here last night that America is becoming pleasure mad and that unless the present pace is checked many youths of today will be of unsound mind within ten years.

CHECK WORKER HELD

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—A. H. Fenton, 35, of Buffalo, was to be brought back here today from Chicago following his arrest in that city. Fenton is charged with issuing bogus checks.

SLAYER INDICTED

CANTON, O., Oct. 12.—James Pinkney, 17, today was under a first degree murder indictment following a report by the county grand jury late yesterday. The youth has admitted killing Ernest Bond, near Waynesburg, during an argument.

HAIR TURNS GRAY

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—When he was first incarcerated in county jail six weeks ago, Benjamin Sindelar's hair was jet black, but since that time it has turned to gray, it was learned here today.

Mental anguish over his arrest on a charge of forgery brought about the change, according to Sindelar. When arraigned late yesterday he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a year in the state penitentiary.

NOTHING HEARD FROM PLANE WEDNESDAY; BELIEVED NEAR GOAL

Daring Girl Flyer And Companion Face Long Route And Menacing Weather—Static Hinders Radio Reception

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Independent Wireless Company reported at 6 a. m. today that it had received a wireless message from the S. S. American Banker reporting that the vessel had sighted "The American Girl," at 10:35 o'clock last night.

The position of the plane was given as latitude 41 north, longitude 65.01 west.

The plane circled the ship and then went on. It was making good time. Weather conditions were ideal.

The wireless company said the delay in receiving the message was due to heavy static which had interfered with all radio communication during the night.

The American Banker reported that a light northwest breeze was blowing at the time the plane was sighted.

The position given by the vessel would place "The American Girl" directly south of Halifax and almost 500 miles on her course out of New York.

The plane carried Ruth Elder, the first American woman to attempt a trans-Atlantic crossing, and George Haldeman, her co-pilot. They left Roosevelt Field, New York, at 5:04 p. m. yesterday on their course after Banker indicated that the plane was in the season was officially "closed" making approximately ninety miles an hour. It was estimated that after they were sighted by the vessel, the plane should have traversed at least 1,250 miles at seven o'clock this morning. This would place them near the regular steamer lane, as they had planned to head northward after flying due east for approximately 1,250 miles. With its load of gasoline lightened as the hours passed, the plane probably increased its speed after sighting the American Banker and reached the steamer lane before seven o'clock this morning, it was estimated.

The pilots have planned their course so that they will head due north for 1,244 miles, then veer toward the English channel on the way to Le Bourget, airdrome in Paris. None of the previous trans-oceanic flights took the pilots over so great a stretch of ocean. Wireless companies had been unable to pick up any radio message from the plane this morning. Static conditions were bad and even ocean liners had difficulty in communicating with shore stations.

A low pressure area was reported off Newfoundland. The plucky woman was using the longest and toughest course yet mapped out for an ocean aviator.

Miss Elder's principal backers are eight business men of Wheeling, W. V. All of the backers tried in vain to persuade Miss Elder and Captain Haldeman to give up their plans for a trans-oceanic flight this year because of the recent disastrous attempts of other flyers. Miss Elder and Haldeman took the responsibility of making the flight.

"The American Girl" is easily identified. It is enameled a brilliant, flaming orange color and on the side, in script is painted "The American Girl," with the legend, in smaller letters beneath it, "Wheeling, U. S. A." Under the wings is painted "N X-1384." The same numbers and letters are on the rudder.

The plane has a Wright whirlwind motor, similar to the one used by Lindbergh, Byrd and Chamberlain, and by Scobee and Brock.

The plane carries 520 gallons of gasoline, sufficient for approximately 4,800 miles, 20-22 gallons of oil, and weighs, in all, 5,600 pounds. The average speed is to be 100 miles an hour, but this will be increased as the gasoline is consumed, making the plane lighter.

The plane has four gasoline tanks in the wings, two of forty-five gallons capacity each, and two of fifty gallons capacity each. The main fuel tank holds 150 gallons and another 150 gallons is carried in five-gallon cans, the cans to be discarded as the fuel is used up, the total fuel capacity is 520 gallons.

Mrs. Haldeman, wife of the co-pilot and navigator, was confident that the flight would succeed. "I have every confidence in George," she said, "and I know that Ruth will help him, and I know that in an emergency my husband relies on her judgment and coolness."

Asked whether she would like to be in Miss Elder's place, Mrs. Haldeman, who has often flown with her husband, replied: "Certainly, but I'm afraid I lack the ability."

Miss Elder was prepared to look her best when she landed in Paris. Over the costume in which she had been seen at the field all day, comprising a plaid sweater, golf stockings to match, gray knickers, and low oxfords she wore a brown leather flying suit lined with gray fur. Under her helmet, which matched the leather suit, she still wore her brightly colored hair ribbon. She declared that she intended to divest herself of the flying suit and helmet in the plane before getting out at Le Bourget, so that the crowd would see her in her brilliant sports costume.

Captain Haldeman wore a regular army winter flying suit lined with black fur, and under this a blue business suit.

Unlike Byrd and others who used rubber boats for emergency landings, to keep afloat on the ocean until aid should come, Miss Elder and Captain Haldeman will stake their lives on two rubber suits, lined with a wood composition, which are expected not only to keep them afloat, but to keep them warm, as well.

Water carbide flares which ignite when they strike water are carried as distress signals.

The rationals carried on the flight consisted of three quarts of hot coffee in thermos bottles, one quart of hot beef tea, six turkey sandwiches, six Swiss cheese sandwiches, six bars of milk chocolate, and a half dozen oranges.

THIS IS FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

A FEW WORDS FROM XENIA'S FIRE CHIEF

"Now is the time," says Fire Chief Hanifan, "to look over your property, clear out all the rubbish, have flues and chimneys repaired, overhaul furnaces and have furnace pipes covered to prevent over-heating and to do your utmost to help prevent fire hazards in Xenia this coming winter. If you must burn out flues do it on rainy days when there is not so much danger from sparks. Look over your cellar carefully to make sure there is nothing there to start fires. Cellar fires, especially in the business district are dreaded most by firemen."

"Xenia has had 71 fires since the first day of January 1927. The loss has not been heavy on any one fire. With earnest co-operation Xenia's fire loss in 1927 can be kept to almost a minimum."

WASN'T GUESSING

When Lindbergh took off for Paris, you remember, he was lovingly advertised throughout the world as "The Flyin' Fool."

Very soon after Lindbergh landed in Paris, he gave the newspaper men to understand that he did not relish the title that had been so fondly conferred upon him. He respectfully requested that he be called something else. Charles A. Lindbergh would do very well for a name, he intimated.

"The Flyin' Fool" was a nickname that implied much. It implied that Lindbergh was a young harem-scum who just jumped into an old crate and flew toward Paris, and just happened to land there. Lindbergh resented any such intimation. He knew that he wasn't guessing when he started out for Paris. He landed his two wheels and his tail-skid exactly where he set out to land them, because he knew what he was about. He had figured it all out in advance. He was not a flying fool, nor was he a wild youngster who happened to be lucky. He was painstaking pioneer.

Somehow, Christopher Columbus has never lived down the reputation he was given by some of his contemporaries. That reputation is that of a lucky dreamer who just sailed and sailed, on a wild-goose chase, and finally happened to run into the West Indies.

Columbus' own journal of his voyages of discovery, is included in a book published by Scribners, called "The Northmen, Columbus, and Cabot." This journal plainly shows that Columbus was not guessing and trusting to luck when he set out to find the New World.

He had an air-tight contract drawn up between himself and the sovereigns of Spain, specifying exactly what his rewards were to be for discovering the new lands and claiming them for Spain.

Columbus did not merely "sail on and on and on and on." He steered a definite course toward land which he knew to exist. He had seen the land charted on maps from the Orient. Maps possibly made by the remote ancestors of the American red men, who had gone out to the western world without ages past and returned, leaving colonists who became red savages.

Columbus knew where he was going. That's why he got there.

FEWER CASES PENDING

There were 149,000 cases pending in the federal courts at the end of the last fiscal year, according to the report of Attorney General Sargent. This is some 6,000 less than the previous year. When you add to that, the vast number of cases all the time before the courts of the states and local courts, it will readily be perceived that the American people are a somewhat quarrelsome people, all the time getting into lawsuits, and frequently showing such lawlessness that they are hauled into court on various charges. It would be much better policy to behave better, and escape some of this litigation.

It is something that the number of cases before the federal courts is decidedly less. There is a good deal of complaint of the operation of our legal system, and one feature of it which is much open to criticism, is the delays that occur. Such delays often causes more loss than a real denial of justice.

The Way of the World

HUMOR THEN AND NOW

In a speech made some time ago James M. Beck, able New York lawyer and a student of Shakespeare, deplored what he called the dullness of the imagination of this generation. He said if we were not dull we would not throw aside the wit of Falstaff or other characters of Shakespeare and laugh at the wit of the modern newspaper comic cartoon. Mr. Beck is not convincing. Some comic cartoons are not very funny, it is true, but in many of them is much sparkling and sometimes subtle humor. Much of the humor in comics and elsewhere in this modern day is just as truly humor as the wit of the ancients.

There is too much automatic worship of the past—ownership of the past just because it is the past. It is conceivable that something good might be drawn or written today.

WHAT'LL YOU DO WITH IT?

Protoplasm, the stuff of life, is a jelly, elastic as rubber, fibrous, and thirsty for water. This fundamental substance of the cells of the human being is like gelatine, rubber, soap, and casein. Well, it's the same for all of us. Apparently it's a good, durable substance. Now that we have it what are we going to do with it? Scientists are interested in substance. Each one of us ought to take his greatest interest in the mind and character with which he can equip his substance.

CRIME VACCINATION

Scientists are talking about a serum with which children may be vaccinated against criminal tendencies. That is a big burden for preventive medicine to carry. Perhaps the best protection against criminal tendencies is the right sort of mothers and fathers—with a little of the serum of severity.

RAINY DAYS OR SUNNY DAYS

To try to sell the idea of thrift by pointing out the need of money on the rainy day that may come is not the best sort of salesmanship. Why not point out the pleasant things that may be done with money on sunny days? Too much of our thought is negative. It is aimed at the immense possibilities of gloom. We are warned to do something lest something unpleasant may happen. Why not forecast the good results of good action rather than the bad results of bad action?

HABIT

The word "habit" has been so badly used that children are afraid of it. They are warned against all sorts of habits. Why not encourage children to form habits that will come in handy instead of warning them so much about habits that will bring grief? We take the negative instead of the positive approach.

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Not for nothing have chorines in Florenz Ziegfeld's "Follies" been synonymous with all that is admirable in feminine beauty. The girls are selected with a master eye and are, perhaps, worthy of the price which is asked for a look at them.

What a blow then, what a shock to one's illusions to behold a picture that was recently printed in the tabloid papers of an ex-Ziegfeld girl. The lady had married a millionaire restaurateur and with both time and money heavy on her hands, pursued a gay and accelerated life. Recently, she was driving her limousine along Fifth avenue, when she was halted by a policeman, who noted she had no lights burning. She staggered out of the car, and was later found, by a police surgeon, to be quite drunk.

The next day in court, she shocked both his honor and the spectators by appearing stockless, less and hairless. Now it was not so much the attire that was startling, as the woman who appeared in it. Here was a former Follies beauty, now fat, dowdy and altogether unattractive. She must have weighed well over two hundred pounds, and her legs were mounded like those of a piano. Her features were stodgy and revolting, and her complexion was pasty. It would be difficult to deny that this woman was once a professional beauty, but it would be twice as difficult to imagine that same fact.

A circular letter is being sent to prominent people in New York, and so far as I know, none of those to whom it is sent is able to discover the object of the thing. The letter head announces its source as "The Tobacco Society for Voice Culture." The contents of the missive tell of the benefits of cigarettes to the throat.

One paragraph of the letter asserts: "OUR AIM: So to improve the cords of the human throat through smoking that the public will be able to express itself in Songs of Praise or more easily to swallow anything."

Further: "All lovers of the word, including students of music, therapeutics, elocution or dentistry are ipso facto eligible for free membership."

The letter asks for no endorsement or contribution of any kind. Signed by Henry Bern who lives in East Eleventh street (in Greenwich Village), I hazard the guess that this letter is the product of a humorously-minded rich man, of whom New York has many. No one but a rich man could afford to pay for the expensive embossing of the highest quality paper, as Mr. Bern has done, on an altogether absurd mission.

How to Be Welcome

It so happened that I was invited to spend a day or two at the home of a man who doesn't care for dogs. He is not only bored by dogs, but thinks they are a terrible nuisance and a menace. Indeed, he has a very deep-rooted fear of mad dogs. Now, wherever I go I usually have at least one dog with me. Friends warned me, therefore, when I started to visit this man, that it would be wise to go practically dogless. But I disregarded their advice and took my dog along. I knew that this dog would behave so decorously that not even a pronounced anti-dog man could make a sensible objection.

Two days later, when we were starting away, our host declared: "I hate to see that old dog go." He didn't say whether he minded my going, but the dog had evidently made a favorable impression. I was not surprised, for the dog has never failed to establish friendly relations on short notice.

As we went away I tried to analyze just what it is about my dog that enables him to make himself welcome. For one thing he has a delightful gift of adaptability. Whether in a garage or in a gilded drawing room he fits right in as if he had always been there, and takes things as a matter of course.

He is never awed by the haughty, nor struts with his thumbe, but sits right in and becomes one of the crowd.

Before anybody has a chance to wonder where he is going to sleep, he unobtrusively curls up in a corner out of people's way.

At mealtime he accepts whatever is set before him without question and eats not gluttonously but with quiet relish.

His capacity to mind his own affairs, to make himself agreeable without loss of dignity, and to be at home with any class of people meets the requirements of true gentility.

In short, a good dog gets along pleasantly and accumulates friends for the same reason that a man should—because he has the natural instincts of a gentleman.

LIKELY GUESS

They were climbing a lofty peak of the Alps, and she was standing a few feet above him. She turned around and gazed in wonderment. "What," he asked, "do you see?" "Far, far below," she cried, "I see a long, white sheet stretching like a paper ribbon almost back to our hotel." "Ha, ha!" he ejaculated. "It's that hotel bill overlooking us."

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Avoid That Dowager's Hump

You may think the front line of the neck is a very unimportant subject to spend a whole day's talk on, but it really involves so much I wish I could give it a week.

The dowager's hump is a lump of fat that is caused by lack of circulation, and too much rigidity. To get rid of it, you must speed up the flow of the blood stream and bring back elasticity to that vital nerve center at the back of the neck. Actually, the Dowager's hump is a placard of slowed-up brain action. It means that the circulation up through the vein that furnishes all the blood for the brain is sluggish, is held back by a congestion at the back of the neck which you have no right to possess. As you know, the brain cannot function without blood. Where there is no blood there is no consciousness. When you faint, you do it because the blood has receded from your brain.

To get rid of the dowager's hump, you must speed up the circulation and keep that region constantly free from congestion. Then do this exercise: Clasp your hands behind your back. Shut the shoulder blades, feeling as if you were pinching them together in back, then bend forward, raising the hands as high as you can get them.

Then reverse and go backwards as far as possible, hands still clasped behind your back and stretching down. It is good also to put around the region of the dowager's hump with brisk, vibrating movements.

When you stand up straight and hold your head as if you were proud of it, you do much to prevent the dowager's hump. I also advise sleeping without a pillow, or if you find you cannot get along without one, trade your big downy one for a "baby pillow." A large pillow tends to throw your head forward on your chest and in that way encourages the dowager's hump as well as bad posture.

I believe if we all got into the habit of looking at our outlines in a full-length mirror, getting the view from every angle, front, side and back, we would be much more careful of our figures and carriage. The dowager's hump is one of the worst results of bad posture.

I hope I have not seemed too harsh in my talk today on the dowager's hump, but I feel that it is such an unnecessary drawback to beauty that everything possible should be done to avoid it. In another talk I am going to take up exercises for limberness and stimulation, which are, of course, extremely beneficial in getting rid of the dowager's hump.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON FRIENDS

I have wondered where that silly idea came from, that one made all their friends in their youth. Like many other things that one says without thought, and never attempts to prove, the idea that one makes all his friends before he is thirty is most fallacious.

How many of the friends that you made in your callow days do you still find "bound to you with hoops of steel?"

Even when you have lived near them all your life you find yourself drifting away from those that you cared for in youth.

This is often no fault of either your old friend or yourself. Each of you has become interested in other things. Each has taken different paths along life's road.

For instance, suppose that the friend you cared for greatly in your youth had, as she grew older, become a devotee of bridge while you were bored to tears at the thought of it. It is perfectly natural that you would drift apart.

No use to say that, if such a little thing as one's amusements has power to wear away one person from another, certainly the friendship between them has never been binding, for the people with whom one is entertained and amused are one's greatest friends.

After all, friendship has one element in common with love. We cannot always tell just why we love a person, neither can we always decide just why we seek the friendship of certain people. Usually in both cases, however, we find that we are amused and entertained by them rather than instructed and edified.

It is perfectly natural that as time passes one's ideas and interests change, consequently while one still enjoys and clings to those who are interested and amused by the same things, one grows away from those who have elected to find their vocations as well as vocations in other fields.

I believe in making new friends. Nothing keeps one so young and alert as the bringing of new people with new viewpoints into one's life.

The friends that one makes after thirty-five or forty are the friends that appeal to one's maturity, and they fill a place that the friends of one's youth seldom hold.

The only really joyous thing about old friends is the memory of the intimacy and sentiment connected with thoughts of youth and the beginning of life.

Household Hints

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

The following menu is to be used for Sunday evening lunch. It is an effort to get away from the stereotyped luncheons. It is economical and "different," and most people would like it.

Home-made Cottage Cheese with Bar Le Duc Asparagus Salad Rolls Butter Olives Celery Hearts Plum or Peach Shortcake Coffee

Today's Recipes

Home-made Cottage Cheese—Sour one quart of milk, remove the cream and pour the milk into a muslin bag. Let drain all night. In the morning take from bag, season with one-half teaspoon salt and add cream, beating with your spoon until smooth.

Asparagus Salad—Use canned asparagus. Lay the tips on a bed of lettuce, top with mayonnaise, add an English walnut meat on top for garnishing.

One Egg Shortcake—One fourth cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup milk, one and two-thirds cups flour, one egg, one tablespoon baking powder, salt. Lay plums or peeled peaches, sliced lengthwise, and seeds removed, on top; sprinkle with sugar and bake.

Mint Leaves Candied

Put an ounce of gum arabic in three tablespoons water in a double boiler. Let stand over hot water until gum is dissolved, then strain into a saucer and let cool. Remove leaves from stalk of mint. Brush leaves on both sides with gum, set on plate to dry. Let it touch the plate as little as possible and turn often. Coating should be thin and dry quickly. Thin down the gum arabic if necessary.

Boil one cup granulated sugar, half tablespoon corn syrup and half a cup of water to 230 degrees F. When sugar is dissolved wash down sides of saucer, cover and boil three minutes. Uncover and boil above. Set dish in cold water and as soon as syrup is cool dip in prepared leaves singly, holding by the stem. Carefully dry the leaf on both sides over the edge of the saucer pan to remove superfluous syrup. Drop two or three tiny white candies near the stem, roll in granulated sugar and let dry on plate.

Bread Pudding

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Soak five or six slices of buttered toast in water or milk and drain. This makes two cups. One quart milk, one-fourth cup butter, one-half-teaspoon salt, one cup sugar, three or four eggs. Heat milk, butter, salt and sugar to boiling point. Beat eggs until lemon yellow. Add bread and eggs to milk. Raisins and flavoring may be added if wished. Put in greased mold. Bake in moderate oven 40 or 50 minutes. Serve with jelly or cream.

Federation President Speaks

Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, spent the summer in Colorado and California. She will spend the next few months in traveling about the states, addressing the various club federations. This is the closing year of Mrs. Sherman's administration and she plans to "direct her efforts to stabilizing and rounding out the work which I initiated when I was elected." The American Home department and the American Citizenship department are objects of her special interest.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—States' Rights—Democratic doctrine—begin to look like seating two Republicans—William S. Vare of Pennsylvania and Frank L. Smith of Illinois—in the United States senate in December.

A few months ago the prospects were overwhelmingly the other way. If Vare and Smith get in, they'll stay in.

They can be excluded by a bare majority vote, which appeared to be a certainty until recently. They can be expelled only by a two-thirds majority vote, which nobody has considered a possibility any of the time.

Vare's and Smith's right to be seated at all was questioned on the ground that they spent too much money, not to be elected, but on their pre-election, primary campaigns—to be nominated, in the first place. This will be recalled as the subject that Senator Jim Reed's slush fund committee poked into so extensively.

The opposing argument was that such preliminaries were nobody's business but Vare's and Smith's own states—that the senate was limited to making sure they were regularly elected, on the face of the returns, about which there wasn't any doubt.

It was a good, sound States' Rights talk.

Curiously enough—that is, it would have been curious if politicians cared a hoot for principles—the rival parties didn't line up on the proposition according to Hoyle.

The Republican senators, taking the States' Rights side, were for seating Vare and Smith—because they needed their votes.

Nearly all the Democratic senators, chucking States' Rights into the discard, were for excluding them—with a view to gumming the Republicans' cards.

The Progressive senators, being ag'in the government, were with the Democrats—on that issue, anyway.

There will be in the next senate Forty straight or nearly straight Republicans, not counting Vare and Smith, who can't vote on seating themselves; forty-seven Democrats! six Progressives and a Farmer-Laborite, which means substantially the same thing.

Forty to fifty-four. Senator Blaine, however, was an exception among the Democrats. He stood pat for States' Rights and said he'd vote to seat Vare and Smith. It was reckoned he might have two or three Democratic followers. Still, with fourteen votes to fidget with—

It looked pretty bilious for Vare and Smith.

Such was the landscape six or eight months ago.

Since then the scene has changed.

States' Rights didn't look like much of an issue when Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, took it up awhile back. It looked too academic—no popular appeal.

Most unexpectedly—to most Democratic politicians—it's turned out to be a cracking good issue. Other Democrats have jumped into the situation and are struggling to take it away from Ritchie. They're scrapping for it, each trying to out-ell the other, about what a dandy States' Righter he is.

Well, a loyal States' Rights Democratic senator can't very well oppose seating Vare and Smith.

Fourteen votes can melt like spring snow in that kind of a sun.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Broken Faith

How careless some people are about keeping their word. They give a promise, but something comes up and they lightly forget it, expecting their friends to forgive and forget.

Those to whom the promise is given do not so easily overlook it, however. They lose faith, not only in the one who has disappointed them, but in human nature generally.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have known a certain girl since babyhood and lately we have been going together everywhere. She promised me a date one night and when I called for her she had already gone with another fellow. She had told me she hated him. I promised myself I would never have anything to do with her. I gave her a chance to explain but she failed in her explanation. Would you think I was right in my promise? I will appreciate if you will give me your advice."

LONESOME

If a girl is not to be trusted and will not keep her promise, I would not waste time on her. Lonesome. There are girls who will not disappoint you, you know.

I have answered your letter, "Blue Eyes," and you will see it in a day or so. Even if the man's wife is cross the children need her.

and if you had four children to work for and a husband who was in love with a young girl, possibly you might be cross too. Please give advice, "Blue Eyes." You will bitterly regret it if you go away with this man.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: Will you please put in a few lines in the Living and Loving column and ask 'Broken Hearted' to send in her address? Would like to get acquainted with her."

And if she did, Lou, how could I send it to you when you only signed yourself that? Would the postman in your town know you by that name?

A long time ago a woman wrote me signing herself "Sad Eyes." She lived with her son, was unhappy and had no money. A number of people wrote me about her and offered to help her, but I had no other name than "Sad Eyes" and no address to give them. I suggest that she advertise for work. A woman who is over 60 years old, but who earns her own living, asks me to put the following in the column:

"If 'Sad Eyes' would write her address to me I will send her money to put an advertisement in the paper."

MRS. A. E. M. I hope "Sad Eyes" is settled before long but I want to thank those who have tried to help her.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

Why Little Possum Wouldn't Run Away

Peter was so sorely pined the little fellow had badly hurt himself when he fell that when he saw the rascal hop to his feet and scurry to his mother, not one bit the worse for his tumble, he was too surprised to do a thing but stand with his mouth wide open, staring at the queer pair. At last Peter did manage to stammer: "A regular April Fool trick! I'd never have believed you would ever run again. Youngster, if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes, 'Playing Possum,' that's what you were doing."

Peter stopped short. Suddenly the mystery was solved. "Playing Possum! Why, you're a Possum!" cried the boy, and glanced half shamefacedly at mother.

"To think that after all the hints you gave me, until this very moment. How stupid you must have thought me!"

Mrs. Possum nodded and dropped from the branch to the ground beside the boy. "I certainly did," answered she, frankly. "And I must say that guess you made all those guesses and not one of them right, I began to grow angry. I have always been so proud of belonging to such a famous family. But with all I did and said I couldn't make myself known. It took Sonnykins, here, to make you recognize us for whom we are. I told you he was clever."

Mrs. Possum waved a paw at her small son. "Come child. You have been out of Mother's pouch long enough. And though you wouldn't own it for the world, I am sure your little body aches from that fall."

Mother Possum bent over, picked up her venturesome baby and tucked him into her furry pocket. And the brave baby cuddled down and went sound asleep.

Peter looked at the baby and laughed. "It was clever of him to keep so still when I touched him," he chuckled. "But what did he do it? If he had been so afraid of me as you said he was, I should have thought he would have run away." "Not Sonnykins shook her head. "Not Sonnykins," said she. "He has been so well trained for that. Young as he is, Sonnykins knows if he ran you might run after him—or at least stay around until he came back again. But if he keeps so still you can't even feel him breathing he believes you will think he is dead and go off and leave him."

FORETHOUGHT

Sam sat on the sunny side of the tree, the perspiration running down his face.

"Boy, you don't you-all sent yourself on the shady side?" his friend asked him.

"That's all right," Sam replied. "You know 'bout nary sun's rep'nt to be on that side, and then Ah won't hab to move."

LOU GEHRIG

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—Henry Lou Gehrig, home run hitting first baseman of the world champion New York Yankees, was given the title today of the most valuable player in the American League in 1927 by the trophy committee of the American League.

"Larruping Lou" won the coveted title by a wide margin receiving fifty-six points, twenty-one points more than Harry Heilmann, Detroit outfielder and 1927 batting champion of the American League.

Ted Lyons, star pitcher of the Chicago White Sox trailed in third place one point behind the Tiger outfielder.

Lou Gehrig finished the 1927 season with forty-seven home runs, more than any other player with the exception of the home run king, Babe Ruth.

Lou cleared the honors in a field of twenty. Aside from being voted the most valuable player, Gehrig was acclaimed the greatest in the league.

"Lou Gehrig is one of the greatest examples for modern youth to follow," declared President Ben Johnson in announcing the award. "Gehrig causes umpires no trouble, attends strictly to business and gives his club the best of his ability. It is these attributes which make Gehrig the great boy that he is."

"Columbia Lou" finished third in the batting list of the American League with honors of having driven in more runs than any other player. In 154 games Gehrig was at bat 685 times. He made 218 hits for a total of 427 bases. These include fifty-two doubles and eighteen triples and the forty-seven homers. He drove in 175 runs.

OHIO STATE CO-EDS MUST RETIRE EARLY UNDER NEW RULING

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12—Efforts to prevent further gossip on the so-called "wild night" life of students at Ohio State University have been taken by Women Student Government Association, woman's judicial body.

A decision recently handed down by that organization, changes the rule on the time when the Ohio State co-ed must report at her respective rooming sorority house after social function on week-end nights.

The new rule which has now gone into effect requires co-eds to be at their homes by 12:45 a. m. on Friday and Saturday night, and no special allowances are to be made for formal dances. The time for all women students on week-end nights remains at 10:30 p. m. the association decided.

In the event of a formal dance by the former rule in effect, the co-eds were permitted to stay out until 2 a. m. on week-end nights. Other special hours were designated as the deadline for various other social functions.

The Women's Government Association is now negotiating for co-operation of the Men's Student Council at the university, in placing a ban on all functions on the campus that are not over by 12:45 a. m.

No restriction on the time when men students are required to be at their rooming and fraternal houses, had ever been made at the Buckeye School.

SCHOOL DRIVE FOR FUNDS IS SUCCESS
Underprivileged children of the city are assured daily nutritious lunches as a result of the generous response on the part of Xenians to the one-day drive for $1,000 made by Federated P-T. A. Tuesday.

Mrs. C. A. Weaver, president of the Federated P-T. A., and chairman of the drive, reports that the response to the drive was the best the organization has ever met and that the quota will be easily reached. In addition to the large sum already received, several pledges will be paid soon. A full report of the finances realized by the drive will be made later.

FIRE CHIEF WILLIAM HANIFAN formally opened the local observance of annual Fire Prevention Week by making an unexpected visit to the Central High School building Tuesday and superintending a student fire drill.

The building was emptied of its approximately 600 students in one minute and forty-five seconds, considered record time. Preceded by teachers of the various classrooms, the children formed in lines and marched out of the building in orderly fashion, indicating the highest degree of efficiency would be obtained in the event of an actual fire alarm.

The last student to leave a room is required to close the door, which would prevent a draft and hinder the progress of a fire in case of a real blaze.

School officials considered the test drill highly satisfactory. Chief Hanifan expects to conduct an inspection of buildings in the business district and make suggestions that will aid in eliminating fire hazards.

Thus far this week, the city has been free from fires.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico.

He has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. The girl, Ruth Henshaw, sends her ambassador, Ramon, to tell the supposed Morton that she will meet him at the church at Tabutama. She needs his help. He meets her, also Clench, an associate of her uncle's, and all go to the ranch, where John meets Manuel Lopez, Rodriguez and Barton Henshaw, the uncle.

He learns that Morton's business with these men had to do with the secret importation of arms into Mexico. John arranges with Ramon to have horses waiting so that he may take Ruth out of the country. Clench is murdered. Henshaw tries to fasten the murder on John.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX.
Mr. Henshaw's look of astonishment gave way to one of grave reproach. "Do not make it worse," he begged. "We know that you and Clench quarreled this morning in Tabutama. You were not on speaking terms when you arrived at this ranch. Clench went to your room tonight. According to your own story you watched him go there. No doubt you were hiding in the garden because you expected him to go there. That Rodriguez and Manuel were close at hand and awake was his protection—then. But later, when they were asleep, he came again. You had waited for him. You had climbed up this end of the porch as you said. And he fell—just here—at your feet.""Finel!" said John. "There are just two things against that."
"And what are they?"
"First, the simple little fact that I did not kill Clench. And second that you know damned well that I did not."

"There's no shoot, no shoot," came a deep, hoarse voice. "Do not put your trust in any such delusions," he said gently. "We are not so easily fooled. Your safety, however, is fortunately for you, as I said before, in the hands of your friends."

—In Mexico. And, frankly, we will be loath to wreck our whole scheme because a quarrel between you and Clench terminated fatally for Clench. Calm an accident. We will take care of the body."

"Look here," said John curiously. "You don't think for a minute that you can keep this thing quiet, do you? I'll wager a hat that the whole village is listening in over the wall right now."

"Would you?" drawled Mr. Henshaw. He laughed a little as if the idea were a humorous one. It was a distinctly unpleasant laugh. "Then you would lose your wager, Mr. Moore. No one listens in on anything that occurs in this garden."

John Moore smiled pleasantly. "And that," he said blandly, "is, I imagine, extremely fortunate for you and your friends—in Mexico."

The eyes of the two men shocked together but Mr. Henshaw shifted instantly from the impact. "Manuel—promptly the order and Manuel stooped again to his burden."

With a lamp in either hand, Mr. Henshaw led the way along the porch, cutting an aisle through the darkness for Rodriguez and Manuel with the dead man swung between them, to follow.

John Moore looked after them until they disappeared. "I wonder," he pondered, "just what they hope to gain by throwing that sort of a bluff? They weren't trying to kill me, I think. No, it was Clench they were after this time. But with the arrival of Morton."

"I might make a dash down the hill now and try to find Miss Henshaw. But if I couldn't persuade her to go instantly—No, too risky I will have to wait until morning and give them the slip. Besides the Ambassador may not have the lamps ready yet. I will have to wait."

He withdrew his left hand from his gun and tucked out the watch in the khaki shield. He stooped to the lamp on the floor. Three o'clock. "And I am two hours late for the El Paso train tonight. It is getting to be a habit," he thought whimsically. "Last night it was tequila; tonight it is murder; tomorrow night—"

Something moved in the shrubbery where the lamp-light fell. "Come out or I'll shoot!" said John Moore.

STUDENTS TO SELL
LYCEUM TICKETS
Central High School students will make a personal canvass of the city Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 17, 18 and 19, in a campaign to put "over the top" the sale of season tickets for the 1927-28 high school Lyceum course, which is considered one of the most attractive ever arranged.

Six numbers appear on the course, beginning next week, and it has been found possible to reduce the price of adult season tickets to $1.50. Tickets can probably be reserved at Sohn's drug store early next week.

HENRY K. BOLINGER
CLAIMED BY DEATH

Henry K. Bolinger, 69, long respected resident of Osborn, died at his home there Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. He had been in ill health five weeks, his condition becoming critical during the last two weeks. Death was due to cancer of the stomach.

Mr. Bolinger was born in Clark County, but had spent the major portion of his life in the vicinity of Osborn where he was a painter and decorator until ill health forced his retirement. He was a prominent member of the Reformed Mennonite Church of Medway.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Amanda Bolinger, one son, Joseph Bolinger, Battle Creek, Mich., and three grandchildren, the Misses Joseph Ruth and Evelyn Bolinger, of Dayton.

The Theater

Monte Blue, engineer of "The Limited Mail" is again cast as a railroad engineer in "The Black Diamond Express," a play which for thrills, humor and human interest out-classes its forerunner, and which appears at the Bijou Theater, Wednesday night.

Blue comes from a railroading family. William Jackson Blue, father of Monte, was for more than thirty years a locomotive engineer in Indiana. One of the boys' keenest pleasures was to ride with dad on the engine and it was his ambition to follow the same occupation.

Will Rogers is said to be so glad opposite Emil Jannings in his next picture for Famous Players.

Marion Byron, former Dayton girl, and sister of Betty Byron, musical comedy star, it with Buster Keaton in his latest "Steamboat Bill, Jr." despite the fact that she has not had previous experience. Ernest Torrence is also in the cast. Some of the scenes of "The Shepherd of the Hills," a screen production of Harold Bell Wright's novel, are being filmed on Inspiration Point, a mountain peak, 13,400 feet high. Alec B. Francis, screen player, who enacts the title role, must climb the peak and do his scenes there.

EARLY RISERS WIN.

NEW YORK—It may be the early bird who catches the worm, but it's also the early burglar who gets the shekels. Because he feared robbers, James Butler, grocery owner, had a policeman stationed at his store each Monday morning until the week-end receipts were taken to the bank. Recently, when the policeman arrived to take up his vigil, he found Butler's clerk trussed in a chair and $156 missing from the cash box. The burglars had preceded the policeman by just ten minutes.

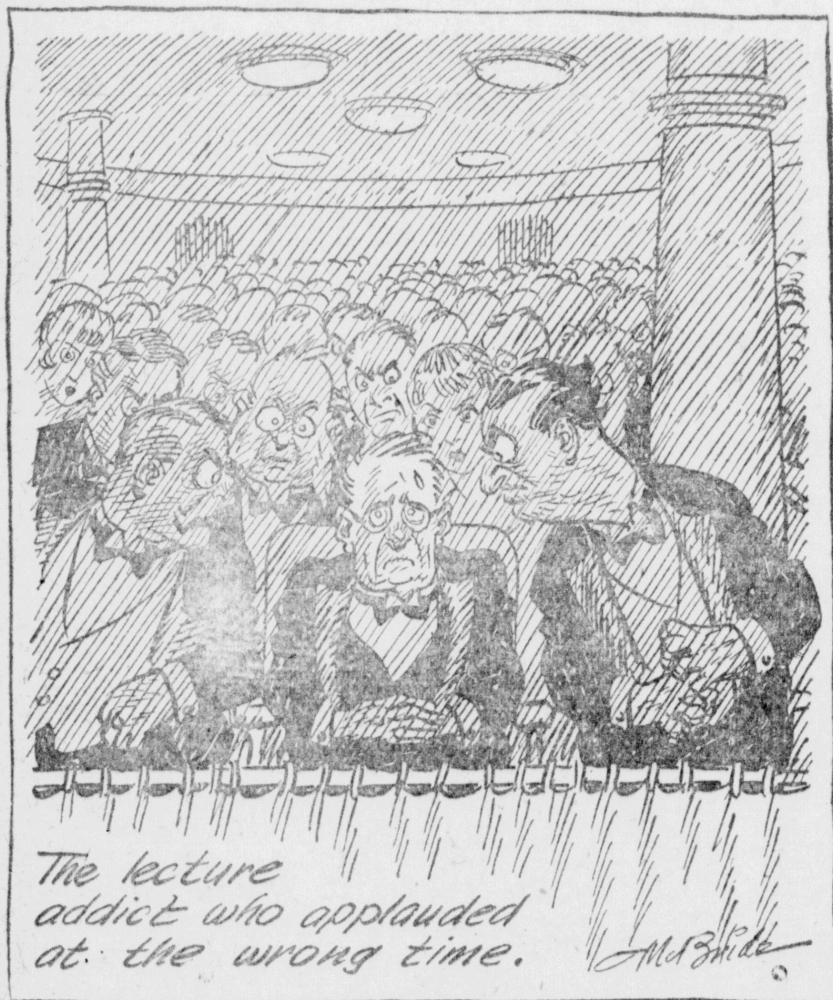

This is Mademoiselle Yola d'Avril, petite French lady, who has consented to emote for us on the screen. Yola is so nice to look upon we hope many more of her French sisters try our cinema.

ed over his recent movie venture, "The Texas Steer" he plans to make another picture instead of returning to Broadway. He refused to tell the new picture's name.

"Wild Geese" picturization of the novel by the same name, by Martha Ostenso, is to be filmed by Tiffany Productions. Work on the film has started. Belle Bennett, Russel Simpson and Eve Southern are in the cast.

SENATOR FESS WILL START ON SPEAKING TOUR ON THURSDAY

United States Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, will be a spectator at the Wright Field dedication exercises Wednesday, after which he will leave for an Eastern speaking tour, he announces.

The senator will witness the exercises but will not take an active part in the program.

Senator Fess will open a long list of speaking engagements Thursday, October 13 when he is scheduled to deliver the principal address at the state Sunday School convention at Newcastle, Pa. On the following day he will represent the United States senate at the sesqui-centennial celebration at York, Pa. The Meade memorial was erected by the state of Pennsylvania on ground furnished by the government, in Botanical gardens, and honors that general of the Civil War, who was responsible for the Union victory at Gettysburg.

Returning home October 21, Senator Fess will talk before the Engineer's Club at Dayton. For the remainder of the time until the last of November, the senator's time will be filled with speaking tours and traveling between Yellow Springs and Washington.

SEPTEMBER MUCH DRYER THAN IN 1926

A high temperature mark on September 15 of 94 degrees, not approaching the high mark of 102 in 1883 nor was the temperature as low during last month as in 1883 according to the revised summary of W. W. Neffert, Dayton observer.

Temperature in 1883 in September reached extremes of 28 and 102 degrees, the summary shows. Average temperature last month was 70.4 degrees while the precipitation was 2.32 inches, or almost four inches less than the wet September of 1926.

It rained the most of September 7 this year and the maximum wind velocity was 41 miles an hour on the same day. There were thirteen clear days, twelve partly cloudy, five cloudy, seven on which there was precipitation and 253.7 hours of actual sunshine for a percentage of 68. Thunderstorms were recorded September 7, 8, 9, 19 and 19 and a light frost fell September 21.

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS: God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers. — Jewish Proverb.

Bananas for Children

Yes, we have bananas! A thoroughly ripened banana is easily digested and is one of the most excellent of energy foods for both children and adults. Bananas for children have been in disrepute for such a long time that it will probably take some time to eradicate the prejudice against them. Bananas should be in disrepute if they are eaten when not thoroughly ripe and when not thoroughly masticated, but when they are thoroughly ripe and well masticated, that's a different story. Even babies can have them (pureed) as early as their teeth are allowed—perhaps by the seventh month.

Unripe bananas are indigestible because they have a large proportion of starch, and raw starch of most kinds is difficult to digest. When ripened this starch is changed into sugar which is very easily digested. In fact, thoroughly ripened bananas are so easily digested that in a certain rare disease of children, known as Celiac disease, in which there seems to be a lack of ability to digest ordinary carbohydrates (starches and sugars), bananas can be used as the sole carbohydrate food.

(Celiac disease is a form of chronic intestinal indigestion in young children, which may have developed on account of a wrong diet, although it may follow infectious diseases. It develops insidiously, and the outstanding symptoms are arrested development, emaciation, abdominal distention and the passage of frequent large, light-colored and extremely foul-smelling stools.)

Bananas are now fed to underweight babies also. The ripe banana is squeezed through coarse-meshed cloth so the fibrous portion is strained out, and the pulp mixed with the milk formula.

(If you have an underweight baby, you shouldn't try to manage his diet. You should go to a baby specialist or to a clinic. We have a list of good books recommended to parents and guardians of children, which also contains a list of books on feeding. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with request.)

Hemorrhage of the Newborn

All the time we are learning the very important relation of diet to disease. Now, in the July 1927, issue of the American Journal of Children's Diseases, I find that in hemorrhage of the newborn, in certain observed cases, there had been a marked deficiency of vitamins (especially vitamin B), in the mother's diet during the pre-natal period.

In hemorrhage of the newborn there is spontaneous bleeding, usually during the first week of life. They may bleed from the umbilicus (navel), from the intestines, mouth or ears. The amount of hemorrhage is not usually great, but there is considerable oozing, so the total amount may be considerable. Up to this time it was not known what the cause was. Now, from experimental work done on animals, and from observation of human cases, it has been found that it is due to an inadequate diet of the mother, especially, as I have told you, one lacking the vitamin B, the anti-neuritic vitamin. (High in whole grain products, citrus fruits, tomatoes, cabbage, spinach, milk, cream nuts, yeast and yeast extracts.)

(The only treatment known for a baby born with this condition is a blood transfusion from a healthy donor whose blood corresponds.)

I got this data from an article by Dr. C. Ulysses Moore and Dr. Jessie Laird Brody in the July number of the Archives of Pediatrics.

(We have an article on diet in pregnancy and nursing which you should have. Send a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.)

CITIZEN MUST FACE OBLIGATIONS SAYS LAWYER IN ADDRESS

Tracing citizenship principles back over the years under the various forms of government, Morris Rice, Osborn attorney, addressed Xenia Kiwanians on "The Obligations of Citizenship," at the Elks' Club, Tuesday night. He described the monarchical, tribal, patriarchal and family government and reserved the Republican form of government for the last, for emphasis.

"The freedom of citizenship we enjoy shows the real growth of government—that we are not mere 'subjects' of some petty king or potentate, but we are free born citizens." A subject was not a citizen. Free citizenship brings privileges and privileges bring obligations, correspondingly great," the speaker said.

He emphasized the responsibility of each one of the worlds "We" and "They." "All are accustomed to speak of two kinds of folks in the community as 'we' and 'they.' Everyone who is not closely connected with 'us' is one of the 'they.' After all, who is 'they'? If they look closely 'we' are 'they.' We cannot put our responsibility of citizenship off on somebody else. When we say 'they' ought to do something, then 'we' ought to do something. We get out from under obligations by trying to put it off on someone else, as 'they.' If you wait for 'they' to do it the community will just go to the bows, because it is our job to make a better community, as a responsibility of citizenship."

The speaker also made a point in connection with the responsibility of the ordinary citizenship, toward the apprehension, the trial and punishment of the criminal. He took particular pains to condemn the mauling sentiment which looks upon every criminal as the "underdog" and will seek to get the "underdog" off from his just punishment because of environment, mentality or what-not. "The moral responsibility is there, even though the fellow has only a fourteen-year-old mind," the speaker declared. "Good citizens who are moral and spiritual assets to the community would not test more. There should be no excuse for a man to escape his just punishment. In reality," said the speaker, "society is the 'underdog.' Men ought to awaken to this truth—that the criminal is not the 'underdog,' but society. This mauling sentiment, copious tears shed by all, eloquent lawyer playing on emotions, sickly sentimental jurors and a man so-called 'underdog' is turned loose on society again. We need swift justice in the United States and surer punishment for any and all crimes. Stand by the enforcement officer of your community, assist in the machinery of justice, do not put it all on 'they' but 'we,' yourselves to go forth as knights of true citizenship for law and order."

Dr. E. A. Kern, Elwood Dunkel and T. H. Zell were on the committee in charge of the meeting.

Licklighter, Mr. Frederick Hartsook, of Columbus, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Harsook. Mrs. Roseboom and Mrs. Maddux remained for a few days' visit at the Hartsook home.

Your Doctor will Tell You How to Correct Constipation

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one made with CASCARET. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascade the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time.

That 4-hour morning grind! How do you prepare for it?

Between 8:30 and 12:30 the important work of the world is done—in offices, schools and homes. A breakfast that "stands by" you is a real need!

Workers who are keen, alert and energetic all through the morning have an immense advantage. Because nation-wide investigations among big business organizations (public utility plants, wholesale houses, and many others) show that 70% of the world's important work is compressed into the four morning hours.

To carry you through these top-speed, high-pressure hours, you must have a good, sustaining breakfast. A breakfast of balanced nourishment, to provide quickly-available, long-lasting energy. Because it "stands by" you through the morning a breakfast of Mother's Oats makes a real difference in how you feel during your most important working period. Oatmeal provides energy and tissue-building materials in better proportion than any other cereal. It is rich in minerals, too—and vitamins—and tender bran, so valuable for roughage. For flavor, Quick Mother's Oats has been the choice of critical families for over fifty years. Skill in milling made the difference.

Start tomorrow to have Quick Mother's Oats breakfasts for a week. See how much longer your morning vigor is sustained!

RUTH ELDER PLANE SIGHTED AT SEA

PLANE STARTS FROM GERMANY FOR NEW YORK

Five Trans-Ocean Flights are actually under way today or are in course of preparation.

On—Mrs. Grayson Delayed

By I. N. S.

Five trans-Atlantic flights are actually under way today or are in course of preparation. Miss Ruth Elder and Pilot George W. Haldeman are somewhere out over the Atlantic today in the plane "American Girl," enroute from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., where they hopped off yesterday at 5:04 p. m. for Paris.

Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Le Brix, French airmen, are at St. Louis, Senegal, Africa, on trans-Atlantic flight Le Bourget, near Paris, to Buenos Ayres, via Pernambuco, Brazil.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—A Fues-Heinkel "water monoplane," the D-1220, piloted by Horta Merz, hopped off at Warendorf at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon on a flight which may terminate at New York if conditions are propitious.

Merz was accompanied by a mechanic, Herr Rhode, and a radio operator, Herr Bock. He said he intended to land at Amsterdam, then proceed from Amsterdam to Lisbon and the Azores, thence to New Foundland and New York. If weather conditions are unfavorable Merz will give up his trans-Atlantic plans, making a tour over Europe.

The plane is powered with a single 800-horse power Packard motor.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 12.—Indications early today were that the hop-off of Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane "The Dawn," in which she intends to fly to Copenhagen, Denmark, would not take place before this afternoon.

Although all was in readiness for the take-off and the plane was fully loaded with fuel and provisions, it was pointed out that weather conditions were not favorable for an early hop.

Mrs. Grayson retired at 12:30 a. m., and did not express any intention of setting out in the wake of Ruth Elder across the Atlantic before noon.

Mechanics were tuning up "The Dawn's" engines and filling the tanks with fuel when word that "The American Girl" had set out into the setting sun with her nose pointed to Paris. Immediately they began to speed up their work.

Mrs. Grayson did not appear to be surprised at the news that Miss Elder had taken to the air first. She said her goal and purpose were different from that of Miss Elder's and that she did not wish to enter any trans-Atlantic race.

She wished Miss Elder all the luck in the world.

MRS. MARY EMERY CALLED BY DEATH

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 12.—Funeral arrangements are being made today for Mrs. Mary M. Emery, philanthropist and one of Ohio's richest women, who died at her home Tuesday night after an illness of several months.

Among Mrs. Emery's philanthropies are: The Ohio Mechanics Institute for which she contributed $500,000; University of Cincinnati, $250,000 for the establishment of a chair of pediatrics; Kenyon College at Gambier, Ohio, $50,000, and property valued at $25,000 for the Cincinnati Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Emery was also interested in a "City of Contentment," near here, named Mariemont, in memory of Mrs. Emery's residence at Newport, R. I. It had been planned to erect an ideal city with special attention paid to the modern needs of children and community life.

SCHOOL CLOSED

CIRCEVILLE, O., October 12.—Dr. George W. Heffner, county health physician, today closed the Washington Township school and placed a quarantine on the Pickaway County Children's Home following the discovery of a case of infantile paralysis here. Lloyd Temple, 7, pupil of the school and inmate of the home, is the victim. This is the fourth case of infantile paralysis in Pickaway County.

TEMPLARS PARADE

AKRON, O., Oct. 12.—More than 10,000 Ohio Knights Templars, all in full regalia, were to take part in the parade here this afternoon which will be the feature event of the annual state convocation.

The convocation will come to a close tomorrow after business sessions and talks by officials of the Ohio Commandery.

FIRE RUINS SUMMER RESORT

FIVE KILLED WHEN STORM HITS VILLAGE

BLYTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 12.—Five dead and eighteen injured was the toll of life taken early today by a severe storm which whipped through the village of Dell, eight miles from here.

Early reports of ten to thirty dead were based on estimates by Cobb Brothers, undertakers, who were busy most of the night bringing the dead and injured over rain-soaked roads to the local hospital. Very little damage was done in Blytheville.

The known dead are: Justice of the Peace J. P. Williams and wife. E. M. Hardin and wife. An unidentified boy, aged about 12, who died in the hospital.

The storm struck this section of Arkansas shortly after midnight, but seemed to center its fury on the little village of Dell.

About twenty houses were either wrecked or partly damaged by the storm. Fire broke out but this was checked by the heavy rainfall.

ENGINEERS PLAN TO CONSIDER MEANS OF FLOOD PREVENTION

Begin Convention In Columbus—Speeches On Program

COLUMBUS, Oct. 12.—The searchlight of the best technical knowledge in America was to be turned on the century-old problem of Mississippi river floods here today, as the American Society of Civil Engineers opened its fall convention.

The majority of the convention's four-day session was devoted to a study of the flood control question, with particular attention to the Mississippi. The first official survey of the 1927 flood—the most disastrous in the history of the river—was to be made available to the delegates at the outset, when Maj. Gen. Edwin Jadwin, chief of army engineers, in whose care the flood problem has been entrusted for years, opened up technical discussions with a complete resume of the Mississippi problem. Gen. Jadwin's address was scheduled for 2:30 p. m. in the closest secrecy was maintained by all speakers, particularly those attending to the army engineering staff and the other official bodies who deal with the Mississippi flood question, no intimation of the contents of their addresses being divulged in advance of delivery.

Gen. Jadwin was to be followed at this afternoon's session by Col. C. Med. Townsend, U. S. A., retired, of New Orleans at the river's mouth.

Lt. Col. George R. Spalding, also of the army engineers, was to follow with an illustrated treatise on the 1927 flood of the Mississippi, and N. C. Grover, chief engineer of the U. S. Geological Survey, will complete the picture of conditions as they now exist by discussing the run-off characteristics of the Mississippi drainage system.

At the annual banquet tonight, Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis, after flying here from Dayton, where he Col. William P. Vooten, New Orleans; Maj. S. C. Coffey, Memphis; and Marcel Garsaud, of the Board of Port Commissioners, New Orleans, were scheduled for the Thursday program.

Remedial measures and plans for combating the recurring disasters in the delta basin, will be taken up at tomorrow's session, with the leading official and lay experts presenting and contrasting the various theories for diverting the huge volume of flood water, and conveying it safely to the gulf without the attendant enormous damage to property which marked this year's high water period.

C. W. Kutz, Cincinnati, of the Mississippi River Commission; E. F. McCarthy of the Federal Forestry Bureau; Col. William Kelly, Buffalo; John F. Coleman, New Orleans; and William P. Vooten, New Orleans; Maj. S. C. Coffey, Memphis; and Marcel Garsaud, of the Board of Port Commissioners, New Orleans, were scheduled for the Thursday program.

TAX DISTRICTS FAIL TO AGREE ON 1928 BUDGET REQUEST CUTS

County Budget Commission faces the thankless task of slicing approximately $65,900 off the aggregate 1928 budget requests of City Commission, City Board of Education, and County Commissioners, to bring the total appropriations within the legal fifteen-mill limitation.

No agreement was reached regarding an equitable distribution of the reduction at a joint conference of the budget commission next year, is already below the sum allowed by law, city commissioners took the position Xenia should not be required to accept a cut in its budget.

County Auditor R. O. Wead, as secretary of the budget commission, went to work on the question Tuesday and will submit his results at a meeting of the budget commission Thursday.

The "buck" was literally passed to the budget commission to find a solution of the problem. It was proposed to make an equitable reduction by cutting $38,800 of 72 mills off the county budget, $18,400 or 1.3 mills off the school budget, and $8,700 or .65 mills off the city budget. These proposed reductions would be in proportion to the various tax levies for each.

As the amount requested by city of Xenia for operating expenses next year, is already below the sum allowed by law, city commissioners took the position Xenia should not be required to accept a cut in its budget.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' BODY IS REVIVED; BINDER PRESIDENT

Organization Holds Enthusiastic Meeting—Committee Appointed To Consider New Industries For City

A committee appointed by the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, held an enthusiastic meeting Tuesday night, began work Wednesday investigating several new industries which may locate here.

One of these industrial concerns was to be approached Wednesday by the committee with the belief that the natural facilities of Xenia would serve to persuade the company to establish a going industrial concern here. Possibility of other manufacturing plants locating here will also be investigated by the committee before it reports back to the association at the next meeting, Tuesday, October 25 at 7:30 o'clock.

Henry L. Binder, vice-president, who called the meeting Tuesday night after J. Thorb Charters, president, offered his resignation, was elected president to succeed Mr. Charters when the latter's resignation was accepted. Mr. Binder called the meeting in an effort either to revive the organization, dormant practically since it was formed several months ago, or to dissolve the association and wind up its business.

With a representation of about half of the original membership present, those attending the meeting were so enthusiastic over plans outlined by President Binder that members agreed the organization can be made to function along its original lines. They expressed themselves as believing that an active commercial organization will fill a long-felt want here.

The meeting was held in a room at 28 W. Main St., over the Yowler shoe market, in a building owned by President Binder and he donated its continued use to the association. The association took steps to furnish the room for the occupancy of the organization and all future meetings will be held there.

While no action was taken to seek new members for the association, it was announced that the organization invited retail merchants to join by getting in touch with Mr. Binder or with Paul G. Feg, treasurer.

FLAMES CAUSE LOSS OF THREE MILLIONS AT OCEAN CITY, N. J.

Firemen From Twenty Cities Fight Blaze—Hotels Destroyed

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—A $3,000,000 fire which swept the boardwalk of this resort last night, destroying two hotels, forty stores and other buildings, was brought under control early today. The fire was the most disastrous blaze in the city's history. Police believe it was started when a lighted match or cigarette was carelessly thrown into a pile of rubbish alongside the boardwalk.

Firemen from twenty surrounding municipalities—some of them coming as far as Atlantic City and Cape May—succeeded in checking the flames after a hard battle. A square and a half of the boardwalk frontage was burned. For a distance of three blocks back of the boardwalk houses were either destroyed or damaged by the flames, which for a time threatened to wipe out the entire residential section of the city.

The firemen did great work in checking the flames at the Strand Hotel, where there were about two hundred guests. This is a six story frame structure. The guests fled from the buildings, many of them in night attire.

In the meantime the flames had destroyed thirty-eight small stores on the boardwalk, two bath houses, the Normandie Hotel, the Colonial Theater, the Traymore Hotel, and several private residences. Thirty automobiles were destroyed. The Traymore and Normandie Hotels had been closed for the season.

Four firemen were overcome. Police and firemen were aided by 200 Boy Scouts.

NOTHING HEARD FROM PLANE WEDNESDAY; BELIEVED NEAR GOAL

Daring Girl Flyer And Companion Face Long Route And Menacing Weather—Static Hinders Radio Reception

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Independent Wireless Company reported at 6 a. m. today that it had received a wireless message from the S. S. American Banker reporting that the vessel had sighted "The American Girl," at 10:35 o'clock last night.

The position of the plane was given as latitude 41 north, longitude 65.04 west.

The plane circled the ship and then went on. It was making good time. Weather conditions were ideal.

The wireless company said the delay in receiving the message was due to heavy static which had interfered with all radio communication during the night.

The American Banker reported that a light northwest breeze was blowing at the time the plane was sighted.

The position given by the vessel would place "The American Girl" directly south of Halifax and almost 500 miles on her course out of New York.

The plane carried Ruth Elder, the first American woman to attempt a trans-Atlantic crossing, and George Haldeman, her co-pilot. They left Roosevelt Field, New York, at 5:04 p. m. yesterday for Paris.

The report from the American She was flying this course after Banker indicated that the plane was making approximately ninety miles an hour, if no mishaps occurred after they were sighted by the steamer. The fliers should have traversed at least 1,200 miles at seven o'clock this morning. This would place them near the regular steamer lane, as they had planned to head northward after flying due east for approximately 1,250 miles. With its load of gasoline lightened as the hours passed, the plane probably increased its speed after sighting the American Banker and reached the steamer lane before seven o'clock this morning, it was estimated.

The pilots have planned their course so that they will head due east for 1,244 miles, then veer toward the English channel on the way to Le Bourget, airdrome in Paris. None of the previous trans-oceanic flights took the pilots over so great a stretch of ocean.

Wireless companies had been unable to pick up any radio message from the plane this morning. Static conditions were bad and even ocean liners had difficulty in communicating with shore stations.

A low pressure area was reported off Newfoundland.

The plucky woman was using the longest and toughest course yet mapped out for an ocean aviator.

As guests of the city, the two fliers will fly over Springfield Thursday afternoon as a symbolic demonstration of the near completion of their round-the-world flight.

Following the public reception, they will leave Friday morning for New York City in the Pride of Detroit their world flight plane. The plane will be guarded closely while in Springfield.

THIS IS FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

A FEW WORDS FROM XENIA'S FIRE CHIEF

"Now is the time," says Fire Chief Hanifan, "to look over your property, clear out all the rubbish, have flues and chimneys repaired, overhaul furnaces and have furnace pipes covered to prevent over-heating and to do your utmost to help prevent fire hazards in Xenia this coming winter. If you must burn out flues do it on rainy days when there is not so much danger from sparks. Look over your cellar carefully to make sure there is nothing there to start fires. Cellar fires, especially in the business district are dreaded most by firemen.

"Xenia has had 71 fires since the first day of January 1927. The loss has not been heavy on any one fire. With earnest co-operation Xenia's fire loss in 1927 can be kept to almost a minimum.

HOW DID IT START?

KEEP STOMACH YOUNG!

Eat What You Want

When the food you eat goes into your acid-soaked stomach, it sours and can't digest, makes foul gas and sour bile. The blood takes these poisonous acids and carries them through the body. Naturally it makes you miserable and despondent, because your system is not nourished—you lose weight. Pepsodent dissolves the acids and sweetens the stomach. It digests the food; no more sour bile is taken up by the blood. Your appetite is like a youngster's again and gradually you get back your health, flesh and energy. Chew a tablet or two of Pepsodent after meals. It tastes good, and relieves the misery of indigestion in five minutes. It will keep your stomach young and vigorous so you can eat anything you want without being afraid of the consequences. Adv.

SUPREME COURT TAKES DUGAN APPEAL UNDER ADVISEMENT

Arguments pro and con, challenging and supporting the validity of the conviction of M. J. Dugan, Xenia, by Mayor John W. Prugh on a charge of possessing liquor, were heard by the Ohio Supreme Court in an appeal of the case Tuesday afternoon.

Attorney F. L. Johnson, counsel for Dugan, was unable to attend the hearing, but submitted a brief, raising the question that Mayor Prugh was without jurisdiction to hear the case. Dugan relies solely upon the Tumej decision of Chief Justice Taft.

City Solicitor J. A. Finney, representing the city at the hearing, argued that the distinction in the Dugan case and the case relied upon by Dugan's counsel was so clear that the disqualifications of the inferior court as outlined in the Tumej case, do not apply in this case.

"It is necessary," according to Finney's brief, "to distinguish between the inferior judge or mayor, as referred to in the Tumej case, and the mayor of Xenia. The disqualification of the mayor in the Tumej case was by reason of two facts."

"First: That the fees received by the mayor depended upon a con-

WRIGHT FIELD DEDICATED BY WAR DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS

Dedication of the new Wright Field, Fairfield, Wednesday, with Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis and Assistant Secretary of War in charge of aviation, F. Trubee Davidson, as the principal speakers, was an event that promised to attract thousands of visitors to the field.

Many national military and civilian celebrities were in attendance. The site of the new Wright Field, comprising 5,000 acres, the gift of Dayton citizens to the government, is near the first flying field in the world, the old Wright Brothers tract, where the two former bicycle merchants in Dayton tried out many of their earlier experiments with a heavier-than-air flying machine.

Dedication ceremonies formally began at 12:30 with the Tenth Infantry Band playing an overture. This was followed by the invocation and the principal speeches of the day.

Inspection of airplanes at the Fairfield Intermediate Depot was held at 2 p. m.

The afternoon program began at 3 p. m. with Lieutenants James Doollittle, James Hutchison and R. C. Moffett in stunt flying with pursuit planes. A demonstration of destruction of observation balloon, aerial review, parachute jumping, two free balloon flights and tactics formation by the first pursuit group cleared the way for the day's big event, the John L. Mitchell trophy race, for sixteen planes in the pursuit group at Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

This race was 200 kilometers, or 124 miles, over a triangular course four miles each way, thus affording spectators a full view of the event.

Other notable guests at the dedication exercises, included: Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air corps, and his assistants, Brig. Generals James E. Fechet and Frank P. Lahm. Civilian guests present included: Judge Keneasaw M. Landis, Edsel Ford and William Mayo, chief engineer of Ford Motors; Bert Acosta, U. S. Senators Frank B. Willis and S. D. Fess, and members of the senate advisory committee on aviation.

Hearing of Elmer Smith, colored, Dayton, on a reckless driving charge, scheduled for Tuesday in Probate Court, was continued by Judge S. C. Wright, pending consideration of Smith's application for a jury trial of his case.

Arrested in connection with an auto accident near Cedarville, October 2, on a charge preferred by Lewis Strewing, of near Cedarville, Smith pleaded not guilty October 4, and was released under $200 bond pending a hearing.

Xenia appropriately observed "Discovery Day," the 435th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, as a legal holiday, Wednesday.

Cities and county offices and banks remained closed all day and St. Brigid's parochial school was also closed.

Although the custom of closing has been general in the past, this is the first year that the day has been observed as a legal holiday in Ohio.

Knights of Columbus are sponsoring a dance and card party at St. Brigid's school house Wednesday evening.

WASN'T GUESSING

When Lindbergh took off for Paris, you remember, he was lovingly advertised throughout the world as "The Flyin' Fool."

Very soon after Lindbergh landed in Paris, he gave the newspaper men to understand that he did not relish the title that had been so fondly conferred upon him. He respectfully requested that he be called something else. Charles A. Lindbergh would do very well for a name, he intimated.

"The Flyin' Fool" was a nickname that implied much. It implied that Lindbergh was a young haremcarum who just jumped into an old crate and flew toward Paris, and just happened to land there. Lindbergh resented any such intimation. He knew that he wasn't guessing when he started out for Paris. He landed his two wheels and his tail-skid exactly where he set out to land them, because he knew what he was about. He had figured it all out in advance. He was not a flying fool, nor was he a wild youngster who happened to be lucky. He was painstaking pioneer.

Somehow, Christopher Columbus has never lived down the reputation he was given by some of his contemporaries. That reputation is that of a lucky dreamer who just sailed and sailed, on a wild-goose chase, and finally happened to run into the West Indies.

Columbus' own journal of his voyages of discovery, is included in a book published by Scribners, called "The Northmen, Columbus, and Cabot." This Journal plainly shows that Columbus was not guessing and trusting to luck when he set "The Flyin' Fool" was a nickname that implied much, out to find the New World.

He had an air-tight contract drawn up between himself and the sovereigns of Spain, specifying exactly what his rewards were to be for discovering the new lands and claiming them for Spain.

Columbus did not merely "sail on and on and on." He steered a definite course toward land which he knew to exist. He had seen the land charted on maps from the Orient. Maps possibly made by the remote ancestors of the American red men, who had gone out to the western world in ages past and returned, leaving colonists who became red savages.

Columbus knew where he was going. That's why he got there.

FEWER CASES PENDING

There were 149,000 cases pending in the federal courts at the end of the last fiscal year, according to the report of Attorney General Sargent. This is some 6,000 less than the previous year. When you add to that, the vast number of cases all the time before the courts of the states and local courts, it will readily be perceived that the American people are a somewhat quarrelsome people, all the time getting into lawsuits, and frequently showing such lawlessness that they are hauled into court on various charges. It would be much better policy to behave better, and escape some of this litigation.

It is something that the number of cases before the federal courts is decidedly less. There is a good deal of complaint of the operation of our legal system, and one feature of it which is much open to criticism, is the delays that occur. Such delays often cause more loss than a real denial of justice.

HUMOR THEN AND NOW

In a speech made some time ago James M. Beck, able New York lawyer and a student of Shakespeare, deplored what he called the dullness of the imagination of this generation. He said if we were not dull we would not throw aside the wit of Falstaff or other characters of Shakespeare and laugh at the wit of the modern newspaper comic cartoon. Mr. Beck is not convincing. Some comic cartoons are not very funny, it is true, but in many of them is much sparkling and sometimes subtle humor. Much of the humor in comics and elsewhere in this modern day is just as truly humor as the wit of the ancients. There is too much automatic worship of the past—ownership of the past just because it is the past. It is conceivable that something good might be drawn or written today.

WHAT'LL YOU DO WITH IT?

Protoplasm, the stuff of life, is a jelly, elastic as rubber, fibrous, and thirsty for water. This fundamental substance of the cells of the human being is like gelatine, rubber, soap, and casein. Well, it's the same for all of us. Apparently it's a good, durable substance. Now that we have it what are we going to do with it? Scientists are interested in substance. Each one of us ought to take his greatest interest in the mind and character with which he can equip his substance.

CRIME VACCINATION

Scientists are talking about a serum with which children may be vaccinated against criminal tendencies. That is a big burden for preventive medicine to carry. Perhaps the best protection against criminal tendencies is the right sort of mothers and fathers—with a little of the serum of severity.

RAINY DAYS OR SUNNY DAYS

To try to sell the idea of thrift by pointing out the need of money on the rainy day that may come is not the best sort of salesmanship. Why not point out the pleasant things that may be done with money on sunny days? Too much of our thought is negative. It is aimed at the immense possibilities of gloom. We are warned to do something lest something unpleasant may happen. Why not forecast the good results of good action rather than the bad results of bad action?

HABIT

The word "habit" has been so badly used that children are afraid of it. They are warned against all sorts of habits. Why not encourage children to form habits that will come in handy instead of warning them so much about habits that will bring grief? We take the negative instead of the positive approach.

OF A

New Yorker

By

Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Not for nothing have chorines in Florenz Ziegfeld's "Follies" been synonymous with all that is admirable in feminine beauty. The girls are selected with a master eye and are, perhaps, worthy of the price which is asked for a look at them.

What a blow then, what a shock to one's illusions to behold a picture that was recently printed in the tabloid papers of an ex-Ziegfeld girl. The lady had married a millionaire restaurateur and with both time and money heavy on her hands, pursued a gay and accelerated life. Recently, she was driving her limousine along Fifth avenue, when she was halted by a policeman, who noted she had no lights burning. She staggered out of the car, and was later found, by a police surgeon, to be quite drunk.

The next day in court, she shocked both his honor and the spectators by appearing stockless and hatless. Now it was not so much the attire that was startling, as the woman who appeared in it. Here was a former Follies beauty, now fat, dowdy and altogether unattractive. She must have weighed well over two hundred pounds, and her legs were mounded like those of a piano. Her features were stolid and revolting, and her complexion was pasty. It would be difficult to deny that this woman was once a professional beauty, but it would be twice as difficult to imagine that same fact.

A circular letter is being sent to prominent people in New York, and so far as I know, none of those to whom it is sent is able to discover the object of the thing. The letter head announces its source as "The Tobacco Society for Voice Culture." The contents of the missive tells of the benefits of cigarettes to the throat.

One paragraph of the letter asserts: "OUR AIM: So to improve the cords of the human throat through smoking that the public will be able to express itself in Songs of Praise or more easily to swallow anything."

Further: "All lovers of the weed, including students of music, therapeutics, elocution or dentistry are ipso facto eligible for free membership."

The letter asks for no endorsement or contribution of any kind. Signed by Henry Bern who lives in East Eleventh street (in Greenwich Village), I hazard the guess that this letter is the product of a humorous-minded rich man, of whom New York has many. No mad dog. Now, whenever you go to pay for the expensive embossing of the highest quality paper, as Mr. Bern has done, on an altogether absurd mission.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

How to Be Welcome

It so happened that I was invited to spend a day or two at the home of a man who doesn't care for dogs. He is not only bored by dogs, but thinks they are a terrible nuisance and a menace. Indeed, he has a very deep-rooted fear of mad dogs. Now, whenever I go I usually have at least one dog with me. Friends warned me, therefore, when I started to visit this man, that it would be wise to go practically dogless. But I disregarded their advice and took my dog along. I knew that this dog would behave so decorously that not even a pronounced anti-dog man could make a sensible objection.

Two days later, when we were starting away, our host declared: "I hate to see that old dog go." He didn't say whether he minded my going, but the dog had evidently made a favorable impression. I was not surprised, for the dog has never failed to establish friendly relations on short notice.

As we went away I tried to analyze just what it is about my dog that enables him to make himself welcome.

For one thing he has a delightful gift of adaptability. Whether in a garage or in a gilded drawing room he fits right in as if he had always been there, and takes things as a matter of course.

He is never awed by the haughty, nor shrinks with the humble, but sits right in and becomes one of the crowd.

Before anybody has a chance to wonder where he is going to sleep, he unobtrusively curls up in a corner out of people's way.

At mealtime he accepts whatever is set before him without question and eats not gluttonously but with quiet relish.

His capacity to mind his own affairs, to make himself agreeable without loss of dignity, and to be at home with any class of people meets the requirements of true gentility.

In short, a good dog gets along pleasantly and accumulates friends for the same reason that a man should—because he has the natural instincts of a gentleman.

LIKELY GUESS

They were climbing a lofty peak of the Alps, and she was standing a few feet above him. She turned around and gazed in wonderment. "What," he asked, "do you see?" "Far, far below," she cried, "I see a long, white sheet stretched like a paper ribbon almost back to our hotel." "Ha, ha," he ejaculated, "it's that hotel bill overlooking us."

How to Achieve Beauty

BY NIMÉ, HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Avoid That Dowager's Hump

You may think the front line of the neck is a very unimportant subject to spend a whole day's talk on, but it really involves so much I wish I could give it a week.

The dowager's hump is a lump of fat that forms at the back of your neck. It is very common in maturity and is caused by lack of circulation, and too much rigidity. To get rid of it, you must speed up the flow of the blood stream and bring back elasticity to that vital nerve center at the back of the neck. Actually, the Dowager's hump is a placard of slowed-up brain action. It means that the circulation up through the vein that furnishes all the blood for the brain is sluggish, is held back by a congestion at the back of the neck which you have no right to possess. As you know, the brain cannot function without blood. Where there is no blood there is no consciousness. When you faint, you do it because the blood has receded from your brain.

To get rid of the dowager's hump, you must speed up the circulation and keep that region constantly free from congestion. Then do this exercise: Clasp your hands behind your back. Shut the shoulder blades, feeling as if you were pinching them together in back, then bend forward, raising the hands as high as you can get them.

Then reverse and go backwards as far as possible, hands still clasped behind your back and stretching down. It is good also to pat around the region of the dowager's hump with brisk, vibrating movements.

When you stand up straight and hold your head as if you were proud of it, you do much to prevent the dowager's hump. I also advise sleeping without a pillow, or if you find you cannot get along without one, trade your big downy one for a "baby pillow." A large pillow tends to throw your head forward on your chest and in that way encourages the dowager's hump as well as bad posture.

I believe if we all got into the habit of looking at our outlines in a full-length mirror, getting the view from every angle, front, side and back, we would be much more careful of our figures.

The dowager's hump is one of the worst results of bad posture.

I hope I have not seemed too harsh in my talk today on the dowager's hump, but I feel that it is such an unnecessary drawback to beauty that everything possible should be done to avoid it. In another talk I am going to take up exercises for limberness and stimulation, which are, of course, extremely beneficial in getting rid of the dowager's hump.

MENU HINT

The following menu is to be used for Sunday evening lunch. It is an effort to get away from the stereotyped luncheons. It is economical and "different," and most people would like it.

Home-made Cottage Cheese with Bar Le Duc Asparagus Salad Rolls Butter Olives Celery Plum or Peach Shortcake Hearts Coffee

Today's Recipes

Home-made Cottage Cheese—Sour one quart of milk, remove the cream and pour the milk into a muslin bag. Let drain all night. In the morning take from bag, season with one-half teaspoon salt and add cream, beating with your spoon until smooth.

Asparagus Salad—Use canned asparagus. Lay the tips on a bed of lettuce, top with mayonnaise, add an English walnut meat on top for garnishing.

One Egg Shortcake—One fourth cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup milk, one and two-thirds cups flour, one egg, one tablespoon baking powder, salt. Lay plums or peeled peaches, sliced lengthwise, and seeds removed, on top; sprinkle with sugar and bake.

Mint Leaves Candied—Put an ounce of gum arabic in three tablespoons water in a double boiler. Let stand over hot water until gum is dissolved, then strain into a saucer and let cool. Remove leaves from stalk of mint, retaining the stem of each leaf. Brush leaves on both sides with gum, set on plate to dry. Let it touch the plate as little as possible and turn often. Candies should be thin and dry quickly. Thin down the gum arabic if necessary.

Boil one cup granulated sugar, half tablespoon corn syrup and half a cup of water to 230 degrees F. When sugar is dissolved wash down sides of saucepan, cover and boil three minutes. Turn over and boil above. Set dish in cold water and as soon as syrup is cool dip in prepared leaves singly, holding by the stem. Carefully drain the leaf on both sides over the edge of the sauce pan to remove superfluous syrup. Drop two or three tiny white candies near the stem, roll in granulated sugar and let dry on plate.

Bread Pudding—(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.) Soak five or six slices of buttered toast in water or milk and drain. This makes two cups. One quart milk, one-fourth cup butter, one-half-teaspoon salt, one cup sugar, three or four eggs. Heat milk, butter, salt and sugar to boiling point. Beat eggs until lemon yellow. Add bread and eggs to milk. Raisins and flavoring may be added if wished. Put in greased mold. Bake in moderate oven 40 or 50 minutes. Serve with jelly or cream.

The American Home department and the American Citizenship department are objects of her special interest.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—States' Rights—Democratic doctrine—begin to look like seating two Republicans—William S. Vare of Pennsylvania and Frank L. Smith of Illinois—in the United States senate in December.

A few months ago the prospects were overwhelmingly the other way. If Vare and Smith get in, they'll stay in.

They can be excluded by a bare majority vote, which appeared to be a certainty until recently. They can be expelled only by a two-thirds majority vote, which nobody has considered a possibility any of the time.

Vare's and Smith's right to be seated at all was questioned on the ground that they spent too much money, not to be elected, but on their pre-election, primary campaigns—to be nominated, in the first place. This will be recalled as the subject that Senator Jim Reed's slush fund committee poked into so extensively.

The opposing argument was that such preliminaries were nobody's business but Vare's and Smith's own states—that the senate was limited to making sure they were regularly elected, on the face of the returns, about which there wasn't any doubt.

It was a good, sound States' Rights talk.

Curiously enough—that is, it would have been curious if politicians cared a hoot for principles—the rival parties didn't line up on the proposition according to Hoyle.

The Republican senators, taking the States' Rights side, were for seating Vare and Smith—because they needed their votes.

Nearly all the Democratic senators, chucking States' Rights into the discard, were for excluding them, with a view to gumming the Republicans' cards.

The Progressive senators, being ag'in the govtment, were with the Democrats—on that issue, anyway.

There will be in the next senate: Forty straight or nearly straight Republicans, not counting Vare and Smith, who can't vote on seating themselves; forty-seven Democrats; six Progressives; and a Farmer-Laborite, which means substantially the same thing.

Forty to fifty-four. Senator Blease, however, was an exception among the Democrats. He stood pat for States' Rights and said he'd vote to seat Vare and Smith. It was reckoned he might have two or three Democratic followers. Still, with fourteen votes to jigger with—

It looked pretty bilious for Vare and Smith.

Such was the landscape six or eight months ago.

Since then the scene has changed.

States' Rights didn't look like much of an issue when Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, took it up awhile back. It looked too academic—no popular appeal.

Most unexpectedly—to most Democratic politicians—it's turned out to be a cracking good issue. Other Democrats have jumped into the situation and are struggling to take it away from Ritchie. They're scrapping for it, each trying to out-vell the other, about what a lousy States' Right-er he is.

Well, a loyal States' Rights Democratic senator can't very well oppose seating Vare and Smith.

Fourteen votes can melt like spring snow in that kind of a sun.

Broken Faith

How careless some people are about keeping their word. They give a promise, but something comes up and they lightly break it, expecting their friends to forgive and forget.

Those to whom the promise is given do not so easily overlook it, however. They lose faith, not only in the one who has disappointed them, but in human nature generally.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have known a certain girl since babyhood and lately we have been going together everywhere. She promised me a date one night and when I called for her she had already gone with another fellow. She had told me she hated him. I promised myself I would never have anything to do with her. I gave her a chance to explain but she failed in her explanation. Would you think I was right in my promise? I will appreciate if you will give me your advice."

LONESOME.

If a girl is not to be trusted and will not keep her promise, I would not waste time on her. Lonesome. There are girls who will not disappoint you, you know.

I have answered your letter, "Blue Eyes," and you will see it in a day or so. Even if the man's wife is cross the children need her.

I hope "Sad Eyes" is settled before long but I want to thank those who have tried to help her.

Columbia Lou Leads Harry Heilmann, Who Was Second

LOU GEHRIG

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Henry Lou Gehrig, home run hitting first baseman of the world champion New York Yankees, was given the title today of the most valuable player in the American League in 1927 by the trophy committee of the American League meeting here.

"Larruping Lou" won the coveted title by a wide margin receiving fifty-six points, twenty-one points more than Harry Heilmann, Detroit outfielder and 1927 batting champion of the American League.

Ted Lyons, star pitcher of the Chicago White Sox trailed in third place one point behind the Tiger outfielder.

Lou Gehrig finished the 1927 season with forty-seven home runs, more than any other player with the exception of the home run king, Babe Ruth.

Lou cleared the honors in a field of twenty. Aside from being voted the most valuable player, Gehrig was acclaimed the greatest in the league.

"Lou Gehrig is one of the greatest examples for modern youth to follow," declared president Ban Johnson in announcing the award. "Gehrig causes umpires no trouble, attends strictly to business and gives his club the best of his ability. It is these attributes which make Gehrig the great boy that he is."

"Columbia Lou" finished third in the batting list of the American League with honors of having driven in more runs than any other player. In 154 games Gehrig was at bat 685 times. He made 218 hits for a total of 427 bases. These include fifty-two doubles and eighteen triples and the forty-seven homers. He drove in 175 runs.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Prizes for selling the greatest and second greatest number of season football tickets went to the senior and junior classes, respectively, it was announced Wednesday.

A checkup revealed that 75 per cent of members of the senior class purchased season tickets while the class percentage slumped to 15 per cent in the seventh grade.

Mary Louise Smith, senior, received the individual distinction of having sold the greatest number of tickets, thirty-two student and five adult tickets.

Lycium course season tickets will be placed on sale next Monday and may be purchased from any student. Adult tickets will cost $1.50 and student tickets, $1. It was previously announced that the price of adult tickets would be $2.50 but owing to the great interest shown in the course, school officials found it possible to reduce the price to $1.50.

Several prizes have been announced, which will be awarded to the class disposing of the most tickets. The class leading the ticket sale will receive 10 per cent of its gross receipts and the class selling the second greatest number will have 5 per cent of the money refunded to its treasury. An adult ticket will be given to every student who disposes of five tickets.

OHIO STATE CO-EDS MUST RETIRE EARLY UNDER NEW RULING

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12.—Efforts to prevent further gossip on the so-called "wild night life" of students at Ohio State University, have been taken by Women Student Government Association, women's judicial body.

A decision recently handed down by that organization, changes the rule on the time when the Ohio State co-ed must report at her respective rooming sorority house after social function on week-end nights.

The new rule which has now gone into effect requires co-eds to be at their homes by 12:45 a. m. on Friday and Saturday night, and no special allowances are to be made for formal dances. The time for all women students on week nights remains at 10:30 p. m. the association decided.

In the event of a formal dance by the former rule in effect, the co-eds were permitted to stay out until 2 a. m. on week-end nights. Other special hours were designed as the deadline for various other social functions.

The Women's Government Association is now negotiating for co-operation of the Men's Student Council at the university, in placing a ban on all functions on the campus that are not over by 12:45 a. m.

No restriction on the time when men students are permitted to be at their rooming and fraternal houses, had ever been made at the Buckeye School.

The Theater

Monte Blue, engineer of "The Limited Mail" is again cast as a railroad engineer in "The Black Diamond Express," a play which for thrills, humor and human interest out-classes its forerunner, and which appears at the Bijou Theater, Wednesday night.

Blue comes from a railroading opposite Emil Jannings in his next family, William Jackson Blue, father of Monte was for more than thirty years a locomotive engineer in Indiana. One of the boys keenest pleasures was to ride with dad on the engine and it was his ambition to follow the same occupation.

"Wild Geese" picturization of the novel by the same name, by Martha Ostenso, is to be filmed by Tiffany Productions. Work on the film has started. Belle Bennett, Russel Simpson and Eve Southern are in the cast.

Some of the scenes of "The Shepherd of the Hills," a screen production of Harold Bell Wright's novel, are being filmed on Inspiration Point, a mountain peak, 13,400 feet high. Alec H. Francis, screen player, who enacts the title role, must climb the peak and do his scenes there.

EARLY RISERS WIN.

NEW YORK—It may be the early bird who catches the worm, but it's also the early burglar who gets the shekels. Because he feared robbers, James Butler, grocery owner, had a policeman stationed at his store each Monday morning until the weekend receipts were taken to the bank. Recently, when the policeman arrived to take up his vigil, he found Butler's clerk trussed in a chair and $156 missing from the cash box. The burglars had preceded the policeman by just ten minutes.

"BOOK BUS" BEING OPERATED BY LIBRARY TO FILL COUNTY NEEDS

To facilitate the shipment of books to deposit stations in the county, the bus pictured here, is being operated by the Greene County District Library. The books began to be sent into the county in September, with deposit stations with from thirty-five to fifty books at Alpha, Clifton, New Burlington, Goes, New Jasper, Paintersville, Trebein and Zimmerman. The books in these collections may be borrowed by any resident of the county, regardless of whether he is a borrower at the main library.

School is in process of organization. Jamestown, Bowersville, and Spring Valley are also arranging for branches.

One of the most important features of county library service is work with the schools and the library is now supplying thirty-five schools. During September, 1,196 books were sent out for the children of these schools. Many schools still need to be supplied. Schools not supplied will be taken care of by request.

SENATOR FESS WILL START ON SPEAKING TOUR ON THURSDAY

United States Senator S. D. Fess, Yellow Springs, will be a spectator at the Wright Field dedication exercises Wednesday, after which he will leave for an Eastern speaking tour, he announces.

The senator will witness the exercises but will not take an active part in the program. Senator Fess will open a long list of speaking engagements Thursday, October 13 when he is scheduled to deliver the principal address at the state Sunday School convention at Newcastles, Pa. On the following day he will represent the United States senate at the sesqui-centennial celebration at York, Pa. He will also be the main speaker at a banquet meeting of the New York Real Estate Board October 15.

The junior Ohio senator reaches the high spot of his tour October 13 when he will preside at the dedication of the George G. Meade memorial in Botanical gardens, at which President Coolidge will make an address. The Meade memorial was erected by the state of Pennsylvania on ground furnished by the government, in Botanical gardens, and honors that general of the Civil War, who was responsible for the Union victory at Gettysburg.

Returning home October 21, Senator Fess will talk before the Engineer's Club at Dayton. For the remainder of the time until the end of November, the senator's time will be filled with speaking tours and traveling between Yellow Springs and Washington.

SEPTEMBER MUCH DRYER THAN IN 1926

A high temperature mark on September 15 of 102 degrees, the approach of the high mark of 102 in 1926 was the temperature as low during last month as in 1926 according to the revised summary of W. W. Neffert, Dayton observer. Temperature in 1926 in September reached extremes of 28 and 102 degrees, the summary shows. Average temperature last month was 70.4 degrees while the precipitation was 2.82 inches, or almost four inches less than the wet September of 1926.

It rained the most of September 7 this year and the maximum wind velocity was 41 miles an hour on the same day. There were thirteen clear days, twelve partly cloudy, five cloudy, seven on which there was precipitation and 253.7 hours of actual sunshine for a percentage of 68. Thunderstorms were recorded September 7, 8, 9, 10 and 19 and a light frost fell September 21.

ANNOYING NIGHT COUGHS

Stopped Almost Instantly. Very frequently adults and children, especially children, have spells of night coughing due to bronchial irritations or while suffering from colds. These coughing spells, if not quickly checked, are very injurious to the health. A famous physician's prescription called Thoxine, much better than patent medicines and cough syrups, acts on a different principle, relieves the irritation and stops the cough within 15 minutes or money back. Contains no chloroform, dope or other harmful drugs. Pleasant tasting and safe. 35c, 60c and $1.00. Ask for Thoxine at Sohn's Drug Store. Adv.

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.
—Jewish Proverb.

Bananas for Children
Yes, we have bananas!

A thoroughly ripened banana is easily digested and is one of the most excellent of energy foods for both children and adults. Bananas for children have been in disrepute for such a long time that it will probably take some time to eradicate the prejudice against them. Bananas should be in disrepute if they are eaten when not thoroughly ripe and when not thoroughly masticated, but when they are thoroughly ripe and well masticated, that's a different story, even babies can have them (pured) as early as other fruits are allowed—perhaps by the seventh month.

Unripe bananas are indigestible because they have a large proportion of starch, and raw starch of most kinds is difficult to digest. When ripened this starch is changed into sugar which is very easily digested. In fact, thoroughly ripened bananas are so easily digested that in a certain rare disease of children, known as Celiac disease, in which there seems to be a lack of ability to digest ordinary carbohydrates (starches and sugars), bananas can be used as the sole carbohydrate food.

(Celiac disease is a form of chronic intestinal indigestion in young children, which may have developed on account of a wrong diet, although it may follow infectious diseases. It develops insidiously, and the outstanding symptoms are arrested development, emaciation, abdominal distension and the passage of frequent large, light-colored and extremely foul-smelling stools.) Bananas are now fed to underweight babies also. The ripe banana is squeezed through coarse-meshed cloth so the fibrous portion is strained out, and the pulp mixed with the milk formula.

If you have an underweight baby, you shouldn't try to manage his diet. You should go to a baby specialist or to a clinic. We have a list of good books recommended to parents and guardians of children, which also contains a list of books on feeding. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with request.)

Hemorrhage of the Newborn
All the time we are learning the very important relation of diet to disease. Now, in the July 1927, issue of the American Journal of Children's Diseases, I find that in hemorrhage of the newborn, in certain observed cases, there had been a marked deficiency of vitamins (especially vitamin B), in the mother's diet during the pre-natal period. In hemorrhage of the newborn there is spontaneous bleeding, usually during the first week of life. They may bleed from the umbilicus (navel), from the intestines, mouth or ears. The amount of hemorrhage is not usually great, but there is considerable oozing, so the total amount may be considerable. Up to this time it was not known what the cause was. Now, from experimental work done on animals, and from observation of human cases, it has been found that it is due to an inadequate diet of the mothers, especially as I have told you, one lacking the vitamin B, the anti-neuritic vitamin. (High in whole grain products, citrus fruits, tomatoes, cabbage, spinach, milk, cream nuts, yeast and yeast extracts.)

(The only treatment known for a baby born with this condition is a blood transfusion from a healthy donor whose blood corresponds.)

I got this data from an article by Dr. C. Ulysses Moore and Dr. Jessie Laird Brody in the July number of the Archives of Pediatrics.

(We have an article on diet in pregnancy and nursing which you should have. Send a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.)

DUCK SAVED FROM DROWNING

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Two sturdy lifeguards heard a great howl and rushing to the pier saw little John L. Young, two years old, disconsolate because his pet duck fell into the water. Without hesitation the two guards jumped into a row boat and with all their might rowed to the spot where the duck was splashing lustily and saved it from drowning.

CITIZEN MUST FACE OBLIGATIONS SAYS LAWYER IN ADDRESS

Tracing citizenship principles back over the years under the various forms of government, Morris Rice, Osborn attorney, addressed Xenia Kiwanians on "The Obligations of Citizenship," at the Elks Club, Tuesday night. He described the monarchial, tribal, patriarchal and family government and reserved the Republican form of government for the last, for emphasis.

"The freedom of citizenship we enjoy shows the real growth of the government—that we are not mere 'subjects' of some petty king or potentate, but we are free born citizens." A subject was not a citizen. Free citizenship brings privileges and privileges bring obligations, correspondingly great," the speaker said.

He emphasized the responsibility of each one of the worlds "We" and "They." "All are accustomed to speak of two kinds of folks in the community as 'we' and 'they'."

Everyone who is not closely connected with "us" is one of the "they." After all, who is "they"? They look closely "we" are "they." We cannot put our responsibility of citizenship off on somebody else.

When we say "they" ought to do something, then "we" ought to do something. We get out from under obligations by trying to put it off on someone else, as "they." If you wait for "they" to do it the community will go to the bows, because it is our job to make a better community, as a responsibility of citizenship."

The speaker also made a point in connection with the responsibility of the ordinary citizenship, toward the apprehension, the trial and punishment of the criminal. He took particular pains to condemn the maudlin sentiment which looks upon every criminal as the "underdog" and will seek to get the "underdog" off from his just punishment because of environment, mentality or what-not. "The moral responsibility is there, even though the fellow has only a fourteen-year-old mind," the speaker declared. "Good citizens who are moral and spiritual assets to the community would not test more. There should be no excuse for a man to escape his just punishment. In reality," said the speaker, "society is the 'underdog.' Men ought to awaken to this truth—that the criminal is not the 'underdog,' but society. This maudlin sentiment, copious tears shed by all, eloquent lawyer playing on emotions, sickly sentimental jurors and a man so-called 'underdog' is turned loose on society again. We need swifter justice in the United States and surer punishment for any and all crimes. Stand by the enforcement officer of your community, assist in the machinery of justice, do not put it all on 'they' but 'we,' yourselves to go forth as knights of true citizenship for law and order."

Dr. E. A. Kern, Elwood Dunkel and T. H. Zell were on the committee in charge of the meeting.

Licklighter, Mr. Frederick Hartsook, of Columbus, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Hartsook. Mrs. Rosebourn and Mrs. Maddux remained for a few days' visit at the Hartsook home.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Weaver spent Sunday at Dayton. The Rally Day service will be held at Eleazer Church Sunday, October 16, with an all-day meeting and dinner at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leis, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Conklin spent Sunday at Indiana with friends.

Your Doctor will Tell You How to Correct Constipation

There is a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

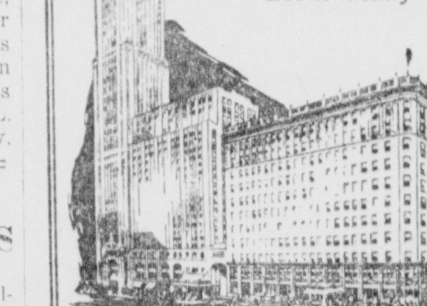

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARET. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascade the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose, no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time.

That 4-hour morning grind! How do you prepare for it?

Between 8:30 and 12:30 the important work of the world is done—in offices, schools and homes. A breakfast that "stands by" you is a real need!

Workers who are keen, alert and energetic all through the morning have an immense advantage. Because nation-wide investigations among big business organizations (public utility plants, wholesale houses, and many others) show that 70% of the world's important work is compressed into the four morning hours.

To carry you through these top-speed, high-pressure hours, you must have a good, sustaining breakfast. A breakfast of balanced nourishment, to provide quickly-available, long-lasting energy. Because it "stands by" you through the morning a breakfast of Mother's Oats makes a real difference in how you feel during your most important working period. Oatmeal provides energy and tissue-building materials in better proportion than any other cereal. It is rich in minerals, too—and vitamins—and tender bran, so valuable for roughage. For flavor, Quick Mother's Oats has been the choice of critical families for over fifty years. Skill in milling made the difference.

Start tomorrow to have Quick Mother's Oats breakfasts for a week. See how much longer your morning vigor is sustained!
